Visionary Design Founder Invents New Ways To Use Beef, Other Meats

ANDY ANDREWS

ATGLEN (Chester Co.) — "People will fight anything that's new," said Eugene "Gene" Gagliardi Jr.

Gagliardi, who some say is the meat cutter industry's "mad scientist," points out how much he disagrees with traditional thinking, which goes: any cuts that can't make steak should be ground into beef.

Not so, says a man who simply likes to cook.

Gagliardi's thinking is "out of the box" and claims the future of the beef industry is in further cutting, taking the harder-to-move carcass cuts and "separating the muscles and denuding them," he said.

Gagliardi's made it big on some of his ideas as president of a company he founded, Visionary Design, based in West Fallowfield Township in Chester County.

Gagliardi has been involved since he was six years old in his family's meat business, Gagliardi Brothers, once located in West Philadelphia and West Chester. He's worked for a variety of further processing companies. Gagliardi owned Designer Foods from 1983-1993.

In 1968, Gagliardi invented a new way to look at steak sandwiches with his "Steak-umm," an almost instant hit and a huge moneymaker. In 1980 the beef product became the largest selling frozen, raw, branded meat product in the world, according to the inventor.

Shortly before he founded Visionary Design, based on a 570-acre farm estate on his Wolf's Hollow Farms near Atglen, Gagliardi, who simply enjoys to cook in his spare time, invested imagination in a big profit-maker for Kentucky Friend Chicken — Popcorn Chicken.

Gagliardi has more than 30 patents on different further processed foods for the beef, chicken (where he has more patents than anything, he said), pork, lamb, turkey, and veal industries.

Not only that, Gagliardi has "cooked up" equipment to help in making further processed foods, including a device called a "Slinder" (short for slicer/grinder"), a plate system that uses parallel slits, ranging from 1 millimeter (mm) to 6 mm wide, rather than holes to fit standard meat grinders.

Gene Gagliardi, inventor and consultant to the Pennsylvania Beef Council on new product introductions and marketing, shows the latest product from his kitchen — "Frank Fries." The product uses French-cut hot dogs covered with a sweet and savory corn dog-style breading, lightly fried to a crisp golden coating. Gagliardi said that big companies and fast food chains are looking at Frank Fries with interest. Photo by Andy Andrews

Reading Cancels 1999 Fair

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

READING (Berks Co.) — The 1999 Reading Fair has been cancelled.

But a 2000 Reading Fair is to be held.

Better than ever, according to fair organizers.

Earlier this year it was reported during a groundbreaking ceremony at a new permanent site, that the Reading Fair would be held Sept. 20-26, though modified from previous years.

At the time of the ceremony, plans were to have one pole barn completed and numerous tents to house the animals and shows in time for the fair.

It was also to feature a first-time, no-price admission/rides/entertainment fee.

However, plans for holding the fair this year were recently scrapped as fair organizers discovered that site preparations couldn't be completed in time.

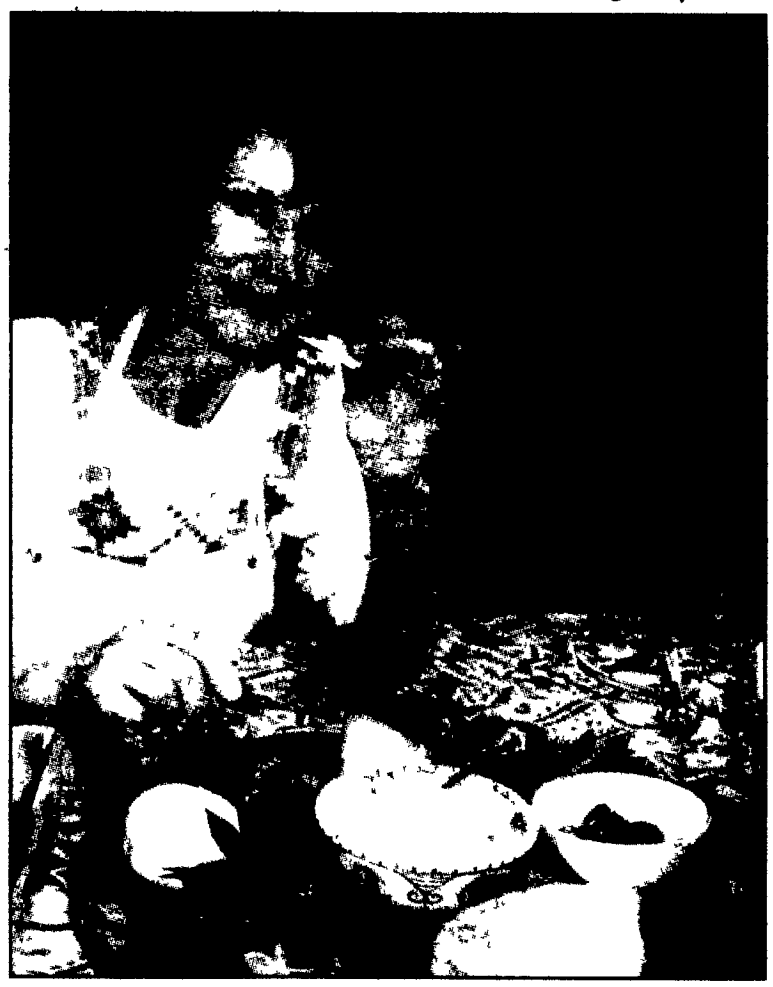
Office Closed July 5

To celebrate Independence Day, Lancaster Farming offices are closed Monday, July 5. The office will reopen Tuesday, July 6.

For the July 10 issue, there is a deadline change:

Public Sale, Auction Report ads — 5 p.m., Friday, July 2.



June is Dairy Month, and goats and sheep are dairy animals too. As the dairy industry, along with the rest of industry, undergoes growing pains in adjusting to post-Cold War changes, the trend toward mega-mergers and elimination of jobs is modified by a grass roots emphasis on entrepreneurialism. As a result, many hobbies are being turned into family supporting businesses. Margaret Zittel has developed an interest in cheese making while living in Paris that remains a hobby, but could well turn commercial. See story on page B2. Photo by Lou Ann Good

Berks County School Superintendents Tour

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

READING (Berks Co.) — To accommodate larger dairies, which may be necessary if dairying is to survive in metropolitan counties such as Berks, processors are willing to expand.

But to survive at all, dairy farms "have to get bigger," according to Clyde Myers, Berks County dairy agent, on a tour last week with more than two dozen county school superintendents at Clover Farms Dairy, north of Reading, and milk producers in the area.

Those who don't get larger, according to Myers, will have to use other ways to cut costs, in light of an increasingly volatile market.

Future dairies in the county could include herd sizes ranging from 200-600 head of cows,

(Turn to Page A28)

On an agriculture tour, superintendents of schools in Berks County find out how important agriculture is to employment potential for students and the broad variety of disciplines involved, and how the dairy industry has changed to require increased herd sizes per farm and what it means. Here they visit Clover Farms Dairy, which employs about 235 people full time, processing milk from 100 dairy farms in the county. Photo by Andy Andrews

NORTHEAST BROILER/FRYER PARTS - PART I FEDERAL-STATE

Trucklot buying interest was at best slow as dealers continued to struggle for business. Offerings were generally falling on deaf ears as buyers were reluctant to make committments at any price level. Movement through most retail and distributive channels was difficult to find as we entered the last weekend of the month The market was weakest on breast items, about steady on the balance.

PRICES PAID PER POUND, ICE PACKED AND CO2 PACKED BROILER/FRYER PARTS, DELIVERED TO FIRST RECEIVERS IN POOL TRUCKLOT AND TRUCKLOT QUANTITIES.

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE

All prices continued generally unchanged to lower. The market tone was barely steady to weak, mostly weak on the large sizes. Demand ranged slow to fair, and was better where featured and into food service outlets. Supplies were adequate to ample on all sizes except jumbos were occasionally tight in some areas. Breaking stock supplies were also adequate to ample, and the undertone was barely steady to weak. Light type hens were more than sufficient for slaughter needs.

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was slow to instances fair. Seller offerings varied from adequate to readily available on the 3.5 to 4 pound sizes. Live supplies remained at least moderate; weights were often heavier than desired. Processing schedules were moderately heavy. Some plants were looking to operate on the upcoming Saturday to insure sufficient product for planned sales while others sought to keep weights from building. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 56 to 68 cents. Trade sentiment was barely steady to weak. Leg quarters were in fairly good balance. Other cuts were increasing in availability.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Tue Jun 22, 1999
USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Grain and soybean bids were slightly lower, today, as good crop ratings and conditions added pressure. Wheat steady to 5 cents lower. Corn 3 to 4 cents lower. Sorghum 5 cents lower. Soybeans 3 to 4 cents lower. Good wheat yields have been reported with USDA using 40.7 bushels per acres for all wheat. However, harvest delays continue in Oklahoma and Kansas due to wet weather conditions. Some areas in Oklahoma and some of the soft red winter wheat and soft white wheat areas have reported declines in crop conditions. Beneficial rains in the Midwest and Corn Belt areas weighed on corn and bean bids. USDA has rated the corn crop at 75 percent good or excellent and showed 3 percent beginning to silk. Soybean planting is progressing with crop condition ratings very good in most areas. Good overnight export sales of corn but soybean orders are very poor this year. Meal bids are lower due to lower corn prices but soy oil prices have firmed.

Oklahoma City Feeder Cattle

Oklahoma City, OK
Wed Jun 23, 1999

USDA-OK Dept Ag Market News
Oklahoma National Stockyards - Weekly Cattle Summary

Compared to last week: Feeder cattle and calves steady. Demand very good despite last Friday's bearish COF report. Quality plain to average, modest end attractive. Increased numbers of plain cattle shipped in from out-of-state to make overall quality lowest so far this spring season. Conditions much improved for buyers with gaunt to average weigh-ups, few full. Feeder cattle flesh conditions slightly thin to medium, few to moderately fleshy. Spring and early summer precipitation has been abundant in the state. Summer pastures are excellent with more grass than cattle available for stocking. Slaughter cows 1.00-2.00 higher. Slaughter bulls steady. Packer demand moderate to good at higher levels. Bulk of spring calving cows that turned up open after last years hot and poor breeding season have been sold reducing available numbers in the state for packers. The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

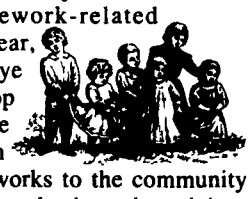
JUNE 28-JULY 4, 1999

DOG DAYS BEGIN, JULY 3.

FULL MOON TO FIREWORKS...

It's a busy week, from the Full Strawberry Moon on June 28, through Canada Day on July 1, and into the hot and sultry Dog Days, commencing July 3. For Independence Day, you've got the weekend for fireworks, feasts, and festivities. Think first of safety if you plan to view Roman rockets, and be sure children are well out of the way of sparks and trajectories. It's estimated that over 10,000 firework-related injuries are suffered every year, and over 1,300 of them are eye injuries. Let small children pop blown-up paper bags or ride over plastic bubble-wrap on their tricycles. Leave the fireworks to the community organizations and fire departments that have the training.



Fire [is] the silent language of the star.

– Conrad Aiken

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ To avoid infection, never put anything but cold water or ice on a blistering burn.

STRAWBERRY TART

1-1/3 cups flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1/8 teaspoon salt
1-3/4 sticks butter
2 egg yolks, beaten
4 tablespoons ice water
3 pints whole strawberries
6 ounces apricot jam

Mix together dry ingredients and cut in butter. Beat egg yolks with ice water, and add to dough. Work quickly to blend well, then knead dough just once or twice and form into a ball. Chill at least 20 minutes, then roll out. Press into the sides and bottom of a tart pan. Chill again in pan, then weight with beans and bake at 350° F for about 20 minutes, or until brown. Meanwhile, clean and hull berries. Heat jam over low heat. Arrange berries, tips up, in baked crust and brush with apricot glaze. Chill. Makes 8 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If the first of July be rainy weather, 'twill rain for four weeks altogether.

Dog Days bright and clear indicate a happy year; but when accompanied by rain, we hope for better times in vain.

As the Dog Days commence, so they end.

OPINION

Cropland Is Unique Ecosystem

Cropland is a unique, essential environmental ecosystem to the survival of modern man.

Modern man, in this case, is defined as agrarian-dependent.

The world's truly nomadic cultures are gone. Hunting and gathering now has little reference to finding wild foods.

In fact, except for a dwindling percentage of wild seafoods steadily being replaced by coastal aquacultural "cropwaters," most humans around the world grow and harvest foods from soils we call cropland.

Even livestock in high-yield confined housing operations require a substantial amount of corresponding cropland to provide the feeds used to raise them for slaughter.

It isn't all done in greenhouses in growing media.

This is important to recognize because it is cropland, not "farmland" that comprises the real goal in preserving the open space being purchased through the state farmland preservation program.

(The Farmland Preservation Program is to get a $43 million boost this year, thanks to the current state General Assembly, and this week to Gov. Ridge's pen.)

It is cropland that can be differentiated from noncropland because of its production capacity.

And despite the arrogance of some, men did not, and do not, manufacture cropland. At least not yet.

As far as we can tell, the creation of cropland required the power that formed the mountains, the oceans, the watercycles of world, and the atmosphere.

It is time to recognize in public policy that cropland is a limited natural resource that can be destroyed or nurtured. Those without control and access to cropland survive at the mercy of those who control it.

Yet, while we rightly attempt to prevent irreversible damage to watersheds through the protection of wetlands, we sit around and talk about lifestyles and pleasant views and keeping farms in a family when we discuss farmland preservation.

It's time to recognize cropland for what it is, and to take the message to the public — cropland is an essential element to an environment suitable for long-term sustained human existance.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Understand Bt Corn

The long-term effectiveness of controlling insects depends on the willingness of farmers to make sure some of the insects survive. This is especially true with some of the new technologies associated with genetic engineering, reports Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomy agent.

Entomologists warn that how long Bt corn hybrids will remain an effective way to control European corn borer (ECB) will depend on farmers' understanding and willingness to use Bt hybrids along with non-Bt refuge acres to reduce the potential of resistance development in the ECB population.

Bt technology was so effective at controlling the ECB, it is being adopted at an alarming rate. First introduced in 1996, it accounted for one percent of seed sales and grew to 19 percent of sales in 1998. As the percentage of the corn acreage planted to Bt increases, the potential for the insect to become resistant also increases.

To Plant Non-Bt Refuge Areas

According to Dr. Kevin Steffey, University Of Illinois Extension entomologist, planting a non-Bt refuge is in everyone's best interest. Everybody loses if we lose the ability of transgenic crops to control pests.

If we blow this, we only have ourselves to blame. The use of refuge planting to manage insect resistance relies on the theory that if an European corn borer (ECB) does survive in Bt corn field, it will find a mate from a refuge area to mate with. If a resistant borer mate with a susceptible borer, the offspring would only carry a single resistance gene and may not survive on Bt corn the next year. Without the pool of susceptible borer to mate with, the resistant borers would mate with other resistant borers and continue to produce resistant offspring.

How much refuge is enough? Finding agreement on this question is difficult. One suggestion is 20 percent.

To Know Poisonous Plants

According to Chester Hughes, Lancaster County Extension livestock agent, Pennsylvania has about 100 toxic plants. Some of these plants arere-sponsible for death of numerous domestic livestock every year.

Factors contributing to plant poisoning are starvation, accidental eating, and browsing habits of animals. With houses springing up everywhere, the rural/urban interface is dramatically increasing and many farm neighbors are unfamiliar with the plants that are toxic to animals.

Following are some common plants that are poisonous to livestock and should not be tossed over the fence to grazing animals: Garden Iris, Holly, Morning Glory, Bracken Fern, Rhubarb, English Ivy, Wild Cherry, Yew, Oak and Mountain Laurel.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "Commitment is the difference between wishing and doing."

Editor:

Over the past year I have had the honor of serving as the 1998/99 Centre County Dairy Princess. Every since that night on June 12, 1998, I have been overwhelmed with the great opportunities and responsibilities that come with the title which are truly opportunities of a lifetime.

When I was crowned you probably wouldn't have known that I was the quietest and shyest young lady, but after having to appear in front of crowds of people I now have the ability to talk, speak, and listen to people of all ages and gender. One of the greatest lessons I have learned in the past year is that every person is different. They have all taught me something I didn't know before.

As the Centre County Dairy Princess I have some pretty amazing tasks. I made a giant sundae, rode in many parades and handed out many ribbons, but speaking to more than 100 Penn State Professors and local lawyers was difficult, especially after I informed them that I wanted to go to Delaware University instead of Penn State.

The countless questions and facts that I have heard and

RETURN TO FOLLY

June 27, 1999

Background Scripture:
Genesis 6:5 through 9:17
Devotional Reading:
Deuteronomy 7:7-11

When I read the scriptural passages for this week, I remembered the theme that Winston Churchill inscribed in Triumph and Tragedy, the final volume in his remarkable history of the Second World War:

How the Great Democracies
Triumphed and so
Were Able to Resume the Follies
Which Had So Nearly Cost Them Their Life

For those of us who remember World War II and have witnessed what has taken place in the world in 43 years since its close, the words seem ominously prophetic. It does seem at time that we worked so hard, fought so tenaciously and sacrificed so much only to resume the follies which brought us to war in the first place.

FROM CRISIS TO CRISIS

This, of course, is hardly a surprise to those of us who read history. It is the story of the world from ancient time to the present: surviving one crisis and then planting the seeds of the next one. Each time, we think if we can only get through this one, we will never find ourselves in this situation again. But generation after generation lives from one crisis to another, usually of our own making.

While I don't believe the unchanging, unchangeable God of creation actually "was sorry that he had made man on the earth" (can God make mistakes?), I can understand why it is said "it grieved him to his heart" (6:6). The writer of Genesis here has a hopeless task in that he is trying to express in human emotions the mind of God. He is trying to illustrate the Great Flood as the consequence of the sin and folly of everyone—with the exception of Noah. The rest of humanity was depraved and they seemed to go from bad to worse. "But Noah found favor in the eyes of the Lord." (6:8).

During World War II our world seemed aptly described by the story of Noah: "For the earth is filled with violence" (6:13). But that is a fairly accurate description of the world at many times in its existence, including today. Corruption, depravity, licentiousness, cruelty, deceit and lying are all too prevalent in our society—at the bottom as well as at the top. Perhaps we need to ask ourselves about the consequences of the way we live today.

A DIFFERENT WORLD

I have been reading an interesting book entitled, How the Irish Saved Civilization by Thomas Cahill (Doubleday). It is a historian's account of how a small group of Irish monks took up the labor of copying all of Western literature they could find to preserve it in this most desperate time when the great Roman Empire collapsed under the weight of barbarian invasion bringing in the Dark Ages. Without this effort by the Irish monks, Cahill says "their world would have been an entirely different one—a world without books. And our own world would never have come to be.

In a sense, the Irish monks by the grace of God provided a Noah's ark to preserve civilization a time comparable to the Great Flood. There have been many times in the history of the world when this same phenomenon has prevailed. I do not think it chance, but Divine providence. Perhaps it is the continuing fulfillment of God's pledge to Noah: "This is the sign of the covenant which I make between me and you and every living creature that is with you, for all generations: I set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be a sign of the covenant between me and the earth" (9:12).

As we approach the year 2,000 there are many dire predictions of the end of the world. We need to look at the rainbow and remind ourselves of God's everlasting covenant. There will always be an awesome price for human folly, but God's redeeming love is even greater.

learned will never leave my memory. I have been asked questions like "Are you really a Princess?" or "Do you live in a castle?" or "Why do I really need to drink milk?" But I think the worst is the all time really bad question "Does chocolate milk come from brown cows?"

At the beginning of my year of reign I wondered many times if I really knew what I was getting into. I was so busy, I wondered how would I ever fit this into my already busy schedule. Well it's almost over and I realize I will never regret being the dairy princess. It has been one of the most positive things in my life. I have met many new friends and will have many fond memories with me throughout my life. I have been given several different titles throughout the year like "Dairy Fairy," "Cow Queen" and "Dairy Queen" but I have always held my head high and remembered that not every girl is given the opportunity to be a dairy princess.

I would like to thank all the members of the Centre County Dairy Promotion Board for all their help and also I would like to extend a special thank you to Candy Wasson my coordinator for everything she helped me accomplish. Thank you also to all my dairymaids, misses and ambassadors, without whom my life would have been lots more complicated. Next, I would like to extend lots of thanks to the dairy farmers throughout the state and especially in Centre County that made me feel like I belonged at every function that they invited me to. Thank you should also be extended to all the dairy cooperatives and businesses that invited me to their many banquets and picnics throughout the year. Also, I need to extend thanks to all the local businesses that were gracious enough to lend me cars or candy for parades and many opportunities to speak. Lastly, I would like to say thank you to all the members of the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services. Jan and Arlene, you actually do become almost like second mothers to all us dairy princesses. They answer countless questions whenever we need answers. Also, a special thank you to Wanda Yoder. It seemed that whenever I would start to feel blue or overwhelmed a card of encouragement would arrive exactly at the right time.

Lastly, a big thank you to my family, throughout the year you have sacrificed many hours of time for me. Dad, a special thank you for driving me in parades and letting me ride on a milk truck for one of them. Will and Ashley, you helped me get everything ready to attend appearances and lastly I need to extend a special thank you to my mom. My mom is the one person who I feel should have a crown on top of her head. She would take the time to attend every function with me. She would help serve ice cream when needed; she would spend many hours helping me with my speeches and scrapbook and just be there whenever I needed her to be. I'm not sure I could have done everything that I accomplished without her help. Thank you again Mom.

I have had the time of my life this past year and I extend my best wishes to all the newly crowned dairy princesses throughout the state. Enjoy yourself, work hard and have a great year, you deserve it. I would like to congratulate Lori Connelly, the 1999/2000 Centre County Dairy Princess and her alternate Emily Cloninger. I hope you have a great year and remember I'll always be there if you need something.

DFA Spurs Industry Support of Dairy Relief Inc., Global Hunger Relief

Today's preoccupation with producing more milk, developing new dairy products and making the bottom line work, sometimes causes us to lose sight of real needs. In February, Dairy Relief Inc. (DRI), a nonprofit organization, was formed to help alleviate world hunger by providing dairy products for humanitarian aid.

With its first major grant of $50,000 from Dairy Farmers of America (DFA) and additional support from other dairy and agricultural organizations, DRI immediately began fulfilling its mission of relief here and abroad. Its efforts included:

- Establishing a grant to the Mennonite Central Committee of Akron, Pa., for delivery of nearly 7,500 pounds of nonfat milk powder to schools on the strife-torn West Bank of Palestine;
- Delivering approximately 20,000 pounds of buttermilk powder to Global Bridges, a Texas-based charity, for shipment to needy North Koreans for bread roll production;
- Shipping more than 39,900 pounds of nonfat dry milk to Honduran hurricane victims. (This DRI donation was made possible with the assistance of the David Livingstone/K.U.R.E. Foundation.)

"We've received contributions from many sources," says Tom Townsend, a retired dairy industry executive who serves as DRI vice president and chief executive officer. "Those contributions, along with matching funds from Dairy Farmers of America, have made it possible for DRI to make product purchases and work with other humanitarian organizations to put dairy products where they are needed most."

To date, DFA has matched more than $100,000 in contributions and DRI has generated more than $260,000 for humanitarian relief.

In coming months, DRI will focus on two fronts. "We'll be assembling additional shipments of dairy products and, at the same time, we will be actively seeking new donations," Townsend says. "We plan to reach and exceed our initial fund-raising goals in order to purchase and ship dairy products to hungry and undernourished people around the world. We hope this is only the beginning."

For more information about DRI or to make a tax-deductible contribution, contact Dairy Relief Inc., P.O. Box 1837, Springfield, MO 65801-1837, or talk to your local DFA representative.

CATTLE. Compared to last week's closing prices, slaughter steers and heifers closed 1 00-1 50 lower. This week's losses accumulated through the week with pressure from lower futures prices and a dressed beef market that has faded from last week's impressive highs. The downside trend started last Friday, with the USDA's bearish cattle-on-feed report Feedlot headcounts were quoted high, but many of the cattle on feed are reportedly lightweight calves, which has little to do with the current fat cattle market Western cattle feeders lost 1 00 at 66.00 and 103 00-104.00 dressed Local Holsteins ended the week .50-1 00 lower Slaughter cows finished mostly steady with the fleshy cows (under 80 pct lean) firm to 1.00 higher Slaughter bulls closed 1.00 lower. Supply included 56 percent slaughter steers, 6 percent slaughter heifers, 28 percent slaughter cows, 4 percent slaughter bulls, with the balance made up of feeder cattle

N.E. Dairy Compact Commission Sets Management Hearings

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MONTPELIER, Vt. — In about two weeks, details of a proposal for a supply management program for dairy producers in the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact region are to be published in the Federal Register.

Also to be published are details for Northeast Dairy Compact Commission meetings, and hearings about the proposed program, set for July 7 at the Eastern State Exposition in West Springfield, Massachusetts, and August 4 at the Northern Stage Opera House, in White River Junction, Vermont.

The Compact Commission is a group of delegates from the six New England states enjoined in the Constitutionally authorized Northeast Dairy Compact.

The Commission meetings are to be held at 1 p.m. at the sites, and they are to be the Commission's regular monthly meetings.

The hearings follow the meetings on the same day, and they should be of interest to Compact producers and others, because they have been especially scheduled for 7 p.m., in an attempt to attract testimony from actual dairy producers.

A Commission official said this was done because the Commission considers it has had a lack of direct input from actual farmers, and for months has had plenty of testimony from representatives of dairy cooperatives, dealers, political organizations and related groups, especially with respect to the supply management proposal.

According to Kenneth Becker, executive director of the Compact Commission, when the Commission met the first week in June to consider a condensed proposal for a supply management system, it put off acting on the proposal until later in the year.

Becker said that the "commissioners want to tweak the proposal."

As it was, the proposal would institute an assessment on each 100 pounds of milk sold by a Compact producer. At the end of the marketing year, those farmers who kept their production stable (no more than 1 percent increase) get a refund of their assessment. Those who increased production lose their assessment. Those who decrease production get a regular refund, plus a bonus refund on each 100 pounds of decreased production.

In essence, the proposal creates goals of no-growth and reduced production for the Compact producers.

While just short of an explicit quota system, the proposal is considered a form of a quota system by many.

This has provided much concern for those in Pennsylvania who have been considering the adoption of legislation to allow Pennsylvania to join in the N.E. Compact should the U.S. Congress expand its borders and extend its life.

Started in 1997, the Compact had an original termination of date of April 1, that was extended to Oct. 1, 1999.

In its brief time of operation, it has provided additional income support for New England dairy farmers (as well as some New York and Pennsylvania farmers), but has also been attracting more milk than it needs.

Milk received by processing plants within the Compact region qualifies for Compact payments. Even if the milk is then "diverted" for use outside of the Compact region, it gets priced at the Compact level.

Last fall, the Commission adopted a rule limiting the amount of milk that a processing plant could divert and still receive the Compact price.

As far as can be determined, in brief, this was done because the Commission didn't want a situation that could foster the deliberate shipment of unwanted milk to a Compact processing plant merely to draw a higher price for the milk.

Depending on the ownership of the processing plant, the motivation to do so is considered a possibility.

When that is done, it dilutes the value of the milk, and thus the farmer price, for all within the Compact.

That problem of increased diversions of milk was exacerbated with increased milk production within the Compact.

Testimony was presented to the Commission that the increased milk production was in response to favorable milk-making conditions, not a widespread expansion of, or increase in, dairy herds within the Compact.

The temporary overage resulted in Compact farmers being required to pay the USDA Commodity Credit Corporation to remove low value dairy product to boost the value of fluid milk.

It has been feared by many that the Compact, by offering a guaranteed price, could result in a more rapid demise of small herd family farms.

It is reasoned that such a guaranteed price could attract investments to fund large-herd dairy facilities that could outsupply and outperform long-time small dairy farms.

However, in markets with no return on investment guarantees, there is greater risk to investment. Logic and history indicate that greater risks are more likely assumed by individuals rather than large financial groups.

Reduced return on investment risk has changed poultry and swine production investment sources, and essentially the production industry in those meat production sectors.

The Compact concept is to stabilize the dairy industry, not stimulate its growth or change the nature of the production industry.

The N.E. Compact specifically was instituted to stabilize small herd family farming in the New England states.

What has become tricky with the Compact pricing system is similar to problems experienced by the USDA during its administration of its defunct program — designed to provide a minimum milk price to farmers in order to keep them in business until market prices recovered to profitable levels.

Here's the concept, as understood by Lancaster Farming: The Compact Commission sets a minimum retail price on milk used as beverage milk, in an attempt to provide a fair system for compensation for product to consumers and farmers within the Compact system.

If too much milk is made, or shipped in, then, for some of the farmers, their pay will drop below the cost of production, no matter what floor price is set by the Commission.

That is to serve to curtail in-Compact production.

However, it doesn't appear as though that is enough of a tool to deal with the real world.

On top of that, the complicating aspects of the current United States milk marketing and pricing system are many, and they affect the ability of the Compact Commission to keep the system simple and fair.

The federal government sets the value of milk after considering the current market value of manufactured dairy products.

For example, when the USDA determines the current price to be paid to a farmer for his milk, it considers the current open trading market price of cheese on national exchanges — and then uses that price as a major factor in determining the current value of fluid milk (and thus the farmer price).

For the farmer and anyone else without cheese processing company records, trying to match up the value of cheese with the price paid for the milk used to make that cheese is impossible.

Forget trying to determine the value of the milk used to make the cheese whose current market value determines the current value of milk, etc.

The perceived assumption used in establishing cheese as a fluid milk price mover is that cheese use represents a regular use of surplus fluid milk, therefore, low-priced cheese represents greatly excessive fluid milk.

Thus tied together in a pricing formula, the government attempts to stabilize the dairy industry by creating a supply-and-demand cyclical relationship based on two relationship assumptions:

1. Low priced cheese creates low priced milk to the farmer and reduces the milk supply; that results in less excessive milk produced, less cheese being made, and thus causes increases in the price of cheese, which then increases the price of milk, etc.

2. Increases in the price of milk stimulates increases in milk production, while decreases in milk price cause decreases in milk production.

However, real world influences — primarily the decisions made by people within the dairy industry — tend to break down the relationships.

For example, for years some dairy farmers have testified at various hearings that they increase dairy production in response to receiving low milk prices (to maintain cash flow to pay bills), and others have testified that they have increased production in response to higher prices (to exploit profitable opportunities).

Because the price the farmer receives for his milk is calculated after the fact, and because he has no direct control over how it is being marketed, he can't know how much he will receive, but he can know how much he spends to make it.

In the competitive battle to control market supply, the trend has been to high-numbered animal operations of thousands of cows. California, and non-traditional dairy states have seen the most

Gagliardi recently demonstrated the slinder to the media. Raw material is sliced through the Slinder plate, which effectively extracts sufficient natural proteins, allowing the material to bind without additives.

The Slinder process is so effective, Gagliardi noted, that traditional "hamburgers" eat like a good steak.

Gagliardi invented another product, the "Guard Dog," in 1996, a safety cutter device for hot dogs. Used before cooking, the Guard Dog scores eight cuts in the hot dog, allowing the dog to stay whole as it is heated and served.

Hot dogs, Gagliardi noted, are the leading cause of fatal choking in children. By making slits into the length of the hot dog, when the dogs are chewed they are broken up into little bits.

The big news: a new product has come from Gagliardi's kitchen. Called "Frank Fries," the product uses French cut hot dogs covered with a sweet and savory corn dog-style breading and lightly fried to a crisp golden coating.

Gagliardi said that big companies and fast food chains are looking at Frank Fries with interest.

Gagliardi's R&D Ranch is a consulting company for the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA), where new products are envisioned, developed, and tested. He's also a consultant to the Pennsylvania Beef Council on new product introductions and marketing.

The business of R&D Ranch? According to Gagliardi, the idea is to work on "different cuts" and ways to use the less ideal cuts, such as the shoulder, the knuckle, and other areas of the beef carcass to "add value to the product." About half of a beef carcass is processed into ground beef — and ground beef, at times, is hard to move in the grocery store.

So NCBA contacted Visionary Design and R&D Ranch to come up with a way to get products, such as the beef knuckle and the flat — the outside bottom round — into value-added products.

"Historically the beef cutting business does everything the same way," said Gagliardi. "They use this part for steak, this part for the roast, and the rest ground beef. This hasn't changed. But consumers want convenience, on a par with chicken.

"Beef is difficult to make to form value-added food. Chicken is easy to do," said the Visionary Design president.

Gagliardi noted that he was coming back on a plane one day and, when the airline meal was being distributed, the attendants were asking the passengers what they would prefer: chicken or beef. A riot, he said, practically broke out when the attendants ran out of chicken.

People heard the word "beef," thinking only of other items, not steak. He believes the offer should have been "chicken or steak." When Gagliardi looks at the less preferred cuts from the carcass, he doesn't see ground beef. He sees additional cuts, a "diamond in the rough," from which he can extract muscles and recut the beef to make steaks.

The key is taking the time to cut into the muscle correctly, denude the beef (remove the fat), and prepare the cut appropriately. Some of the cuts can be made into sirloin tips, London broil, roasts, and others.

Recently Visionary Design, with 23 clients and growing, was host to reporters from USA Today and Progressive Grocer. Gagliardi explained the new cuts of beef he developed, including the Rotiss-A-Roast, available in stores.

The roasts come in a one-pound package and are similar to the deli-style rotisserie chickens, a hot competitor for the beef industry.

The "knuckle" cut is the part of the kneecap, the hardest muscle to move form the round. But the knuckle, if cut correctly, can be used to make roast beef, London broils, steaks, sirloin tips, beefsteaks, and Philadelphia cheesesteaks.

The cuts are lean. The center portion is the most tender.

From the knuckle can be processed 10-12 steaks, two London broils, sirloin tips, and 14 four-ounce hamburgers, according to Gagliardi in a videotaped demonstration.

"Traditionally the knuckle has been ground down," said Gagliardi. He has managed to work out several value-added products, if only the industry would pay attention.

Another cut that can be further processed, instead of being ground down, is the shoulder, the clod subprimal. The processor can make roasts, London broils, steaks, and Philadelphia cheesesteaks. This includes the clod heart, the flatiron, and the shoulder bone and boller roast (the clod heart).

From the clod heart can be made kebabs, steaks, or London broil. From the flatiron, or top blade, some steaks can be made, as well as excellent pot roast, according to Gagliardi.

The shoulder clod has to be needle-tenderized, he noted.

For processing the flat or outside bottom round, processors can trim and denude it. Get rid of the silver membrane, noted Gagliardi. The meat can be made into corned beef or roast beef or "whatever," Gagliardi noted. With a tenderizer, many roasts can be made.

A big steak, what Gagliardi refers to as "Texas Steak," can be made. "Something other than roast," he said.

At the Thursday event, several industry leaders spoke at Visionary Design/R&D Ranch. The included Carl Blackwell, executive director, new product development, for NCBA; Joseph A. DePippo, New Product Development Team, NCBA; and Antonio Mata, also of the new product development team, NCBA.

Elizabeth A. Timmins is executive vice president of Visionary Design. The company employs two full time, including Frank Oas, who has worked with Gagliardi for more than 20 years. Timmins has been working with Gagliardi for 13 years.

Joyce Schaeffer, accountant/secretary, was recently hired full time.

Together with Gagliardi, "we do crank more ideas out than anybody around," said Gagliardi.

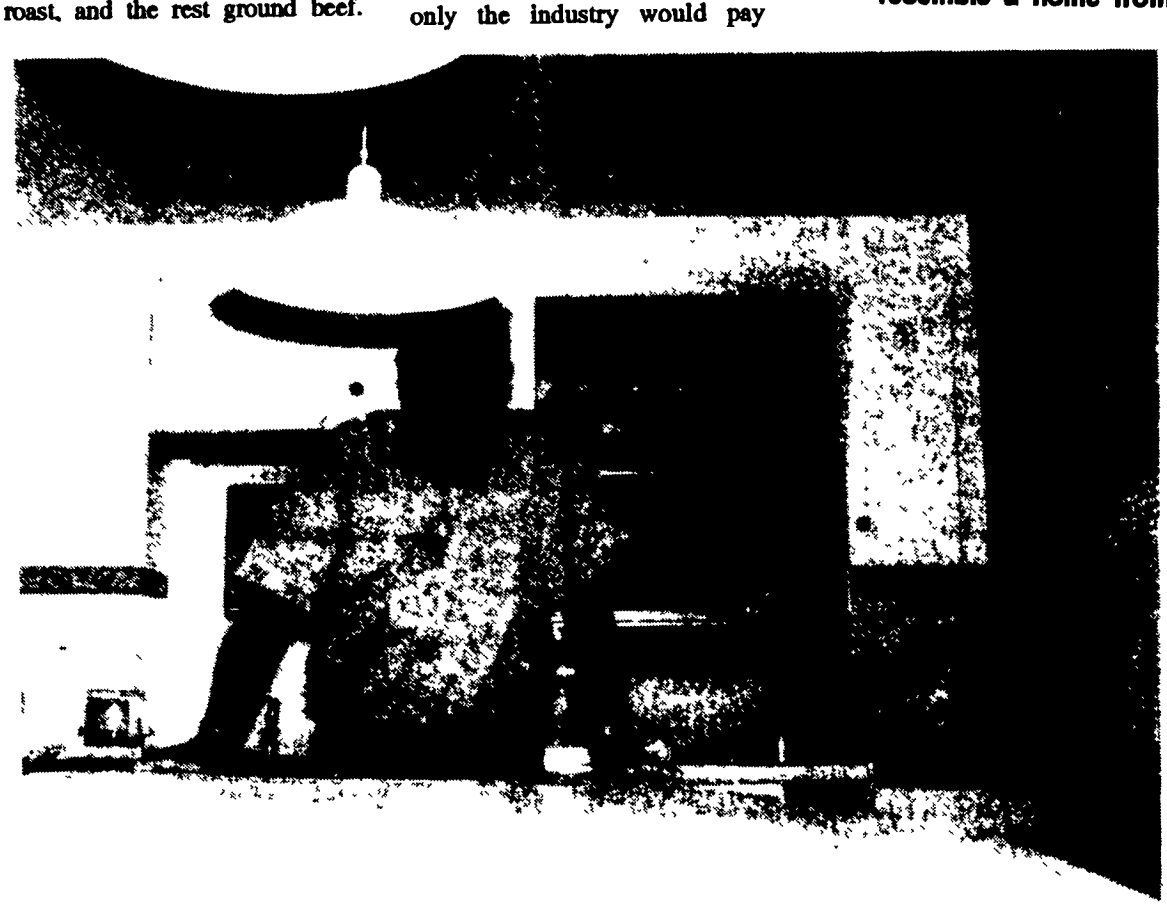
Gagliardi also farms. His daughter, Jill, 39, takes care of a cow/calf herd of Red Angus at Wolf's Hollow Farms. At the farm, Gagliardi cares for 35 head of cows, most from Leachman, in Montana. Wolf's Hollow sells feeders.

Gene Gagliardi purchased the farm with his wife of 47 years, Joan, in 1987 from a bank for $1.5

(Turn to Page A23)

Gene Gagliardi's R&D Ranch is a consulting company for the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA), where new products are envisioned, developed, and tested. He's also a consultant to the Pennsylvania Beef Council on new product introductions and marketing.

Gagliardi recently constructed a new house, finished in 1994 with the help of several friends. The 4,800-square foot home was built Williamsburg, Primitive Hall Style, to resemble a home from the 1800s.



Gagliardi's made it big on some of his ideas as president of a company he founded, Visionary Design, based in West Fallowfield Township in Chester County.

AgriLink Provides Low Interest Nutrient Management Loans

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Treasurer Barbara Hafer and Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes, Jr. this week said that more than $25 million in low-interest loans is now available through the AgriLink program to help Pennsylvania farmers protect the environment through sound nutrient management practices.

"Our waterways are one of Pennsylvania's most precious resources," Hafer said. "We are committed to helping farmers get the funds they need to reduce water pollution. AgriLink cuts the cost of borrowing in half."

"This financial assistance is a very good opportunity for Pennsylvania livestock producers to embark upon 21st century nutrient management operations," said Secretary Hayes. "Also, the AgriLink program illustrates how state government is prepared to be helpful for our livestock producers."

AgriLink is a joint venture among the Treasury Department, the State Conservation Commission, the federal Farm Credit Bank and the commercial banking community.

Loans will be available to farm owners or operators participating in Pennsylvania's Nutrient Management Program.

The loans will cover the costs for manure storage facilities, improved storm water management practices and other approved practices under the Nutrient Management Program.

Farmers with approved nutrient management plans are eligible for loans up to $75,000 at sharply reduced interest rates with terms of up to seven years.

Under the AgriLink Program, eligible lenders will determine each applicant's eligibility and determine the interest rate for individual loans. The Treasury Department will provide loan funding by investing state funds with eligible lenders in the amounts of approved AgriLink loans.

The State Conservation Commission, with the assistance of the Agriculture Department, will use separate funds to buy down interest rates on loans provided through the program, resulting in a below market rate for farmers.

Agriculture officials will subsidize the program so farmers will receive loans at an interest rate four percentage points below market rates, resulting in a 50-percent savings over loans at conventional interest rates.

The Treasury Department will provide loan funding by investing state funds at a market rate of return consistent with current outstanding deposits.

Hafer and Hayes said the new AgriLink program was a result of months of cooperative work among their departments, the General Assembly, the Pennsylvania Bankers Association, the Pennsylvania Association of Community Bankers and the federal Farm Credit Bank.

The State Conservation Commission, with the assistance from the Agriculture Department, will administer the program jointly with the Treasury Department. Applications are now being accepted at more than 160 eligible banks and their branch offices statewide. The state's 24 Farm Credit Offices also will accept applications.

million. The property, formerly owned by Leonard Schoff, was in ruins, according to Gagliardi, and went through extensive renovations. Fencing was installed. Lanes were repaired and extended. In all, the farm includes seven miles of trails and three miles of paved roads.

Of the 570 acres, 140 are in pasture. The rest is simply woodland.

Gagliardi recently sold the farm to the county as a park, including three miles next to the Octorara Creek, on land that borders Lancaster and Chester counties. He has to leave within 10 years.

Wolf's Hollow Farm was so named because it was the last Chester County farm to have wolves on it, holed up in caves on a rock face in the forest. The wolves were removed in the late 1800s.

He recently constructed a new house, finished in 1994 with the help of several friends. The 4,800-square foot home was built Williamsburg, Primitive Hall Style, to resemble a home from the 1800s.

Jill Gagliardi, Gene's daughter, feeds and trains Thoroughbred racing horses. They include about 15, of which eight are raced, both for turf and dirt. All Thoroughbreds, the horses range from one to nine years of age.

Jill has been training for 15 years. Early on, she spent time fox hunting, but has devoted most of her time to the horses.

Reading Cancels 1999 Fair

"We're looking at moving 80,000 yards of material, working mostly with volunteers," said David Souders, Reading Fair president. "We looked at it, and whatever we did, the site wasn't going to be right.

"We felt that if there was any risk we couldn't have it right for this year then we should hold off a year. And that's our plan, holding it in 2000."

The new site is county land adjacent to the existing Berks County 4-H and Agriculture Center, located near the Berks County Prison, and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers offices at Blue Marsh Dam.

He said that the Reading Fair received a state grant for work done, and that materials have already been purchased for a pole barn that is ready to go as soon as the ground is graded off and prepared.

Souders said they also received two bids for 1999-2000 for supplying power, water, doing grading, and also for the construction of roadways.

"We're going ahead with construction of the fairgrounds," Souder said.

For years the Reading Fair had been held at the Fairgrounds Square Mall, but more recently had to be moved because of mall expansion.

It was then held at the Kutztown Fairgrounds, but attendance dropped, and organizers figured it was because of the distance of travel from Reading.

All the while, and for some years, county land adjacent to the county Agricultural and 4-H Center was considered for use as a fairgrounds site. This year it was to move there.

According to Souders, rather than hold an incomplete fair and risk having attendees go away with an unpleasant experience, it was decided to wait a year.

"First impressions are lasting impressions," Souders said, adding that the wait will be worth it.

Despite the lack of an overall Reading Fair, some events associated with the Reading Fair are to continue, regardless.

The Fair organization intends to hold its annual closed banquet recognizing the county's outstanding farm family and four outstanding agricultural youth (two from 4-H and two from FFA).

In addition, two competitions are to be held: the Hershey Cake Contest and the Apple Pie Competition.

The decision to hold off on the fair for this year was made just in time to prevent unnecessary printing of premium books.

That also means that those who wish to compete in either the Hershey Cake or Apple Pie Contest need entry forms.

Those who competed last year in the two cooking contests are to automatically receive entry forms. Others interested in competing should call (610) 370-3473.

In addition, the county 4-H Livestock Club was to have held its annual roundup event and sale in conjunction with the Reading Fair. The Roundup is to be held instead at the Kutztown Fairgrounds.

That's not all.

Even though there is no official fair this year, there is to be a fundraising event at the Boscov's Mall in Mt. Penn in Reading.

It's to be called the "Reading Fair Carnival Fundraiser," and be held in the parking lot of the mall.

According to Souders, it will highlight about 15 midway rides, some foods, and free entertainment, with the majority of proceeds raised to go toward the startup of the new Reading Fairgrounds.

He said the carnival, to be held Sept. 20-25, is to be comparable in size to a church-style carnival.

In addition, much of the carnvial is to involve donations.

"Local fire police are to help with traffic," he said. "Anything there, music, etc., will be people donating time," he said. "That will help to put money in the coffers. It's costly, even with free help, to get a fair kicked off."

It is the second time in recent history that the fair has been cancelled. It was cancelled in 1979 because of construction of the Fairgrounds Square Mall.

Setting Retail Prices

JOHN BERRY
Penn State Extenstion
Ag Marketing Agent

One area of concern for farm marketers often is trying to find a method for setting retail prices.

Pricing is not a science. You must understand your costs, your consumer and your competition.

Be prepared to be flixible in determining a markup.

Pricing strategies also involve choosing whether to position your product as premium, competitive, or bargain.

Customers will generally be willing to pay more for higher quality and additional service.

Selling price must cover the cost of production, cost of selling, other operating costs, and provide a margin of profit.

Costs fall into two catagories — fixed (overhead), and variable (direct labor and material).

Fixed costs occur if production or marketing takes place or not.

Variable costs are related to production and marketing taking place.

Calculating variable costs is often viewed as easier than the equally important task of trying to properly allocate fixed costs over the items sold.

Examples of fixed costs are such things as insurance, salaries, mortgage, interest payments, and licenses.

Examples of variable costs are such things as ingredients, labels, containers, labor, boxes, freight, promotion, and bad debt.

New business owners often do not include a cost for their own labor when determing price. As the business grows and someone is hired to replace the owner's labor, a sharp rise in the cost occurs as the cost of hired labor is added into the pricing formula.

Always include profit and cost of labor when determining a retail pricing strategy.

Consumers buy on the basis of value, for a price. How much the customer is willing to pay depends on quality, competition, and how strongly the customer feels about wanting or needing your product. The customer has to be able to justify the price paid.

What the competition getting?

Assume a retailer bought product from a distributor with typical profit margins along the way.

RETAIL PRICE: $1.00

(minus retailer margin) -40 %
(minus distributor margin) -25 %
(minus processor's margin) -15 % original product wholesale cost = 38 cents

What's my price?

The quick way to retail pricing is: ADD all fixed and variable costs; DIVIDE this by the amount that will be sold.

This figure is the break-even price. Profit needs to be included somewhere in the calculations.

In reality, it is seldom easy to arrive at a retail pricing method that can be uniformly applied to all products.

If you choose a pricing method, or if you price by the seat of your pants, remember, the idea is to make a profit.

Track income and expenses weekly to quickly assess whether modification of your strategy is required.

QUESTION: Could you elaborate on some indicators that show when competition between first lactation heifers and older cows becomes a problem?

ANSWER: This question comes in response to an earlier article that listed what is expected between peak milk differences of 2-year-olds and older cows.

The first indicator of course in this scenario is establishing a ratio between first lactation peak milk and older cows.

When this ratio falls below 73 to 75 percent, one consideration may be that the younger animals are being shortchanged by older and more aggressive cows.

Doing things right during heifer development can go a long way in keeping age difference effects to a minimum, but often that is not enough.

Therefore, where do we look when we think that growth, transition, and health considerations are at their best?

Often times, when heifers peak at levels that are less than predicted, other trends can be noticed.

If these first lactation animals also reach their peak later than the normal 75 to 90 days in lactation, we should suspect that the cause could be from competition with older cows.

This time period often has younger animals showing persistency well over 100 percent from test to test, but they may take 120 to 150 days to hit peak milk. Reproduction statistics are usually lower than the rest of the herd when competition is the holdback.

Many times, the performance paramters can tell us there is a problem. We need to make physical observations if we are to be truly successful in determing the source of our problem. These observations should include feeding areas, water access, and resting places.

Feeding areas should be large enough to accommodate feed availability needs. For those that have three rows of stalls to one feed area, it is a common mistake to not notice the young and more timid cows being pushed back until everyone else has their fill.

Make sure the bunk has plenty of feed left for the second wave of consumers and make sure it does not take a 36-inch span to reach it.

We need to maximize the time that feed is available to the cows in a crowded environment. Bunks that are accessbile from both sides can be too narrow and head butting can limit feed access, therefore making it the same as a short fence line bunk.

One of the biggest problems that I commonly observe is that the total area of the bunk is not used. Feed is dispersed so that the ends of the bunk are unused or become empty very fast.

The fact that you provide 150 feet of bunk for 75 cows is not important when there is no feed at the last 20 feet of either end.

Water access is just as, if not more important than feed access. Cows have the tendency to drink more heavily at certain times than others. After milking is one of these times.

It is important to be able to accommodate the number of cows leaving the milking area at one time. Causing bottlenecks will result in less than optimal water intake. This is especially true when younger, less aggressive cows are commingled with older cows.

The last area that I will mention is that of the resting place.

Do you observe that some areas in your facility are favored over others? Guess who will be pushed to the less desirable areas.

Here it becomes advisable to correct the problem, because first lactation or not, there will be cows that are forced to use this poorer area.

What we especially want to avoid is first lactation animals using the floor instead of the stall, to allow quicker escape from one of more boss cows that may pick on these youngsters.

It is not my intention to recall every reason to segregate first lactation from the rest of the herd. I believe that it is good management to do so.

The truth is, you need to ask your cows if this might be good for them.

Do heifers make less than 73 percent of mature cow peak at the time when we expect them to peak?

Take the time to develop observation techniques that will guide you along with your records in making management decisions.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Eric Clifford represents the eighth generation of his family to be involved in dairying in Vermont. He and his father, Arthur, farm 500 acres and milk 155 Holstein cows, achieving an outstanding rolling herd average of 28,900 pounds of milk on 3x milking.

POSILAC® 1 STEP™ has increased production for the Cliffords by an estimated nine to 11 pounds per cow per day. Eric supplements all eligible cows. "POSILAC has helped us make money and extend the life of cows. We are able to keep cows that would have been culled before, in production longer," says Eric. "We are intentionally increasing calving interval of our cows. With POSILAC, they are capable of being productive and profitable longer."

A new dry cow free-stall barn was built to house both the far-off and close-up groups. It is complete with a maternity area where cows are housed on a bedded pack. Heifers are raised in a total confinement facility. The heifer facility includes an environmentally controlled room for calves, plus free-stalls for older animals. Cows are housed in a cold free-stall barn built in 1959 and upgraded numerous times. Milking takes place in a double eight herringbone parlor.

Eric says he can't find anything he would rather be doing than dairying and he is always willing to share ideas with other producers. His wife, Jane, is bookkeeper for Clifford Farm. They have one daughter, Elizabeth.

CULLING DECISIONS DETERMINE BEEF VALUE AND DAIRY PROFITS

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — To cull is "to select, to pick out; to gather," according to Webster's Dictionary. To market is to produce something "suitable for selling."

In the real world, dairy culling decisions are not often defined in this way because the compelling forces have historically been milk price, stall availability, and the cost and availability of replacement animals. Thus, culling is mostly viewed negatively as a cost, and the animal removed as salvage with little value.

Nothing could be farther from the truth. Much of the beef from cull cows is processed into ground beef, representing 43 percent of all beef consumed in this country. But, there's more. Today, about half of the beef from dairy cull cows is processed and merchandised as whole muscle cuts for such food favorites as fajitas, Philly steaks, deli and fast-food roast beef, even marinated steaks.

Quality Breeds Opportunity

The dairy industry is beginning to sense that these decisions are not just about making milk anymore. The way dairies approach their culling and replacement decisions is rapidly becoming a human health issue, in both perception and reality. Good dairy managers recognize the same management and culling practices which assure beef quality, also demonstrate dairy profitability.

When milk prices fall, producers tend to take a tougher look at their cow employees. When milk prices are higher, a compelling force is removed, and the tendency is to put off the voluntary culling decisions, sending mostly "forced" removals to market. By then, they've lost substantial value to the beef industry, erased management and profit opportunities for the producer and posed a risk to consumer confidence.

Safeguard Dairy Image

Researchers across the country are seeking ways to help dairy farmers recognize what kind of cows they're sending into the food system and the substantial economic benefits to be gained from paying attention to this essential area of herd management.

Expansion competition for limited replacements and the flexibility of modern dairy systems add to the prevalence of "forced" culls on the market.

As physical constraints like facility space become less compelling, the broader public and environmental factors of keeping the marginal dairy cow become more compelling. The low-milk or disease-compromised cow loses carcass value daily as she either becomes too fat, too thin, or more lame.

The decision to keep or cull that animal may well include specifically assessing her environmental cost to the land-limited operation, or in general, the public image her deteriorated market condition conveys about the dairy industry.

Recognize Profitable Culling

Culling and replacement of dairy animals accounts for 20 to 25 percent of the operating costs of a dairy, second only to feed costs. A comprehensive, timely approach to culling which results in more voluntary decisions and fewer "forced" removals, has been shown to increase net returns per cow for the entire dairy herd.

"There is more awareness of this aspect of dairy management as profit margins decline and dairy economics tighten," said Dr. David Gallagan, associate professor of animal health economics at the University of Pennsylvania's New Bolton Center. Along with researchers at Cornell University and the University of Florida, Gallagan is studying the dimensions of culling, and testing model approaches developed in Holland to define the cow that should be removed, and when.

"Culling is a complex decision, and we often do not recognize profitable culling. The gray zone cow in a milking herd can be as costly as any subclinical disease," Gallagan said. "Every day, a cow faces that decision, and every day, the producer intentionally or non-intentionally makes that decision. We want to step back and look at this as a new disease — the failure to make the right decision to maintain the right combination of cows in production."

When milk price, facilities, and replacements are the only compelling forces driving voluntary culling decisions, the decisions aren't made at the best time and beef values as well as dairy profits suffer. Researchers suggest this is largely because "we look at her production as milk only, not beef."

This mindset creates other economic and consumer confidence losses — from the valuable meat that is thrown away due to damages from improper injection sites, bruising and inflammation, to the human health and safety concerns from extra label use of some medications not approved for meat animals. Dairy animals eventually do become meat animals.

Pursue the Economic Opportunities

Quality defects have a pervasive negative effect on the price that beef processors can afford to pay for cows. According to the 1994 Non-Fed Beef Quality Audit conducted by the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, producers lose about $70 on every herd cull they sell because the packer's purchasing power is diminished by the amount of wasted meat, condemned carcasses and poor carcass quality they lose money on every single day.

Approximately three percent of all cows are condemned by the USDA at the packing plant. Among emaciated and disabled cows, 40 percent are condemned. These losses can be prevented by culling animals with health conditions as soon as possible.

Make the Tough Decisions Early

It's difficult to remove the emotional aspects which underlay these culling decisions; however, producers and their veterinarians need to consider the dairy cow's final destination when making choices about her treatment.

"Marketing those cows before that certain loss of body weight is important, but it means you're making the decision before you've given up hope on her. That's emotionally hard," said Glenn Pugh, whose 50-cow dairy is located in Pennsylvania's Cumberland Valley. For him, the biggest challenge was learning to separate the emotions from the dollars and cents.

"If I have a cow that shows a good chance of not being able to return to sound health, I'll sell her instead of medicating her. With 50 cows, if I have two problem cows, and I sell them, it gives me more time to focus my energies on the herd as a whole," Pugh explained, adding that he has seen his herd respond to a more voluntary and timely culling approach.

He credits his grade and yield sales to the packer for giving him a real understanding of what he's selling. "These things were probably evident before, but I wasn't paying attention. The education here has brought it into focus and forced me to pay attention."

Pay Attention To Condition

Selling the marginal cow before she becomes too thin benefits the dairy producer, the beef packer and the consumer. Cows in the 2.5 to 3.0 body condition score (BCS) range are most profitable in terms of carcass yield and percentage of fat. Plus, as cows become thinner and drop below 2.5, they become weaker, and are more likely to become downer cows during transit.

Herd studies indicate that a high percentage of cows are marketed in early lactation, many of them disease-compromised "forced" removals. According to the Non-Fed Beef Quality Audit, nearly five percent of all cull cows were in serious negative energy balance and had insufficient condition scores of 1. These extremes can be prevented.

Just as sound nutritional management practices improve the overall health and performance of the milking animal, they also improve her value as a beef animal. The tough, but critical part, is making the voluntary decision before body condition deteriorates.

Double the Benefits, Not the Losses

From the beef value side timely culling practices increase producer revenues in two ways — by weight (pounds) and by value (per pound). Better body condition puts that animal into a more highly valued beef processing class. The double benefit can pencil out to a difference of $144 in retained value between the timely decision and the "forced" removal 30 days later, according to Cornell University researcher Dr. Donald Line.

Think of it this way. That $144 difference in beef value based on condition alone is equivalent to 1,100 pounds of $13 milk. Now include the cost to keep her milking, and she would have to make 60 pounds a day to offset the beef value loss.

Berks County School Superintendents Tour

requiring full- and part-time labor on a consistent basis. Students will have to know how milk is produced and the certainty of sustaining farms in and around major urban areas such as Reading.

And to do so, ag zoning will have to involve all the municipalities working together, developing multimunicipal planning, a comprehensive plan based on school districts that will allow farming to remain viable in the county, according to the extension agent.

Late last week, superintendents of schools in Berks County found out how important agriculture is to business. They visited Clover Farms Dairy, which employs about 235 full-time, processing milk from 100 dairy farms in the county.

Tom Mullery, vice president of sales for Clover, said the dairy also purchases milk from the Maryland-Virginia Milk Marketing Cooperative and Dairylea. About 65 percent of their products are milk and the remainder are other items, including teas, flavored drinks, juices, nutritional drinks, and others.

The company employs families from the Berks County region and, according to Mullery, family word-of-mouth is important to obtaining good workers. He emphasized the importance of recruiting a good workforce and the critical role schools play in providing quality employees.

To meet growing demand for product, Mullery noted that Clover intends to expand, including adding additional refrigerator space to handle a wide array of products. The new space, only in the proposed stages, would include more receiving doors and perhaps a larger workforce.

The company is in partnership with Teamsters 429.

One superintendent noted it was important to teach students about agriculture because it is something "that takes place every day in communities, and students need to learn how it affects them." And high schools should learn to provide the skills necessary for work dairy processors need, according to other superintendents at the tour.

Superintendents were allowed to tour the factory, including the receiving, processing, refrigeration, and shipping areas.

In the receiving area, two trucks were being unloaded. One, a Mount Joy Cooperative truck driven by Jake Wise, contained about 6,000 gallons of milk from six farms in the Elverson area.

Testing it was Dave Boltz, milk receiver. Clover tests the milk for antibiotics and bacteria content using the SNAP Beta Lactam Test Procedure, which Boltz demonstrated.

The milk is stored in four silos. One holds 505,000 pounds, another 425,000 pounds, one 465,000 pounds, and another 340,000 pounds. From the farm, the temperature of the milk is kept at 40 degrees or lower.

At the plant, ice tea products are mixed. They can be blended from several silos. At one, Merrill Goda, drink mixer, was placing ice tea powder into a blender for mixing.

During the tour, Donna King of Clover Dairy Farms, noted that orders are taken for drinks and

Dr. Larry Schmidt, Conrad Weiser Area School District superintendent, second from left, visited the farm operated by Dennis and Betsy Sattazahn, Womelsdorf. Zahncroft Farm is home to about 55 milking stock and about 50 young stock, all registered Holsteins. growth in dairy farm establishment in the past decade, and most of those operations involve large operations.

Furthermore, during the late 1980s and early 1990s, university dairy and agricultural economic research recommended production of a minimum 1 million pounds per employee in order to be profitable, as well as milking a minimum herd of 500 animals in order to attain a middle income standard of living for a single family.

While demand for milk has been growing slightly, annual national production increases have exceeded the consumer demand.

Exports have been boosted and maintained somewhat through the USDA Dairy Export Incentive Program, but world prices kept low through aritificial means and dumping, and higher non-agricultural overhead demands on United States dairy farmers prevent non-domestic markets from serving to assimilate annual dairy production increases.

All that aside, the Northeast Dairy Compact is being held up by its promoters as a successful model for stabilizing dairy farmer income.

This is being asserted by certain milk marketing interests and farm policy groups.

The expressed goal of these groups is to see the Northeast Dairy Compact extended indefinitely, and opened up to include the Middle Atlantic states. Another goal is to create a Southern Dairy Compact, and others in the nation, if possible.

On the other hand, representatives of independent producers and processors and some smaller dairy cooperatives with local markets have spoke out against the Compact, because it removes some of the potential reward for actually being competitive and more efficient.

Instead, it is the opinion of the opposing side that the guarantees offered would seem to pave the way for less diversity in the dairy industry, as well as fewer players.

For those unfamiliar with how milk is priced under the Compact, the minimum beverage milk price (Class I) for farmers is set to reflect a reasonable cost of production. (The level of actual margin depends on the individual operation).

However, farmers get paid on the basis of all the uses of their milk, a "blend price," which is a direct result of how it is marketed.

The more of the milk supply that gets directed to uses other than beverage, the lower the overall farmer price.

Since the Compact has been in existance, the percentage of milk in the region being used for Class I has dropped.

However, since the Commission doesn't set minimum farmer prices on milk used for other purposes, it is considering a supply management system to prevent continued percentage decreases in Class I uses.

The bottom line is this: the farmer's price is more a reflection of the percentage of his milk that gets used for Class I, than a reflection of how high the price set for Class I milk.

To testify, or for more information, call the Compact at (802) 229-1941, or visit the web site at www.dairycompact.org.

Dairy Market Snapshot

FRANK HIGDON
Dairy Agent
Blair Co. Extension

HOLIDAYSBURG (Blair Co.) — Dairy farmers and dairy industry partners are working together more closely than ever to sell milk – and it has helped increase demand for dairy products.

Throughout the 1990s, total milk sales have shown an annual average increase of 1 percent to 2 percent.

While butter and cheese markets continue to show some weakness, fluid milk production remains strong and well above year ago levels in many major milk producing areas.

At the national level, milk prices are sinking. They will slip to $12.80 - $13.50/cwt. by next year. That's down 50 cents per cwt. from the likely '99 average, close to farm price of '98.

Low feed costs and strong current prices will stimulate production and depress prices for the rest of this year.

Since 1984, dairy promotion organizations have helped sell more than 200 billion additional pounds of total milk over the amount projected by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. For the first time, dairy farmer promotion groups, processors and grocery stores are working together to sell more milk.

The American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East has been working with grocery stores using "Got Milk," and the "milk mustache" advertising in school food service, nutrition marketing, public relations, consumer promotions, and research and technology efforts.

The Agriculture Department will provide more dairy export subsidies under the Dairy Export Incentive Program for farmers hurt by low prices. It will allow exports of 50,000 tons of products until June 30.

Exporters can bid for nonfat dry milk, whole milk powder and cheese. Although subsidized products cannot be exported to Asia, they can be sold to the Caribbean, Central and South America, Africa and the Middle East.

Berks County School Superintendents Tour

packaged accordingly, including citrus punch, lemonade, ice tea, and others. One drink packaged includes the Foodservice Resource Health Shake. Clover also packages milk for GAF Seelig from New York City.

The group also toured the refrigerator units which keep all products at 38 degrees.

Afterward, superintendents were allowed to tour a couple of dairies.

After the tour, Myers spoke about the size of Berks farming, ranked fourth in the state in dairy cows and milk production, with 221,511 acres in farms making up 40 percent of the county.

Market value of ag products sold in the county in 1997 totaled $247.78 million.

Of 1,586 farms in the county, 386 are dairy, 119 are swine, 89 sheep, 170 are poultry, and 212 are horse, according to the 1997 Census of Agriculture.

Most agriculture is located in a sort of "half-moon" around Reading, said Myers. The comprehensive plan being put in place in the county is going to be "critical to all of us," and district superintendents should be part of a say in how much will remain agriculture.

Municipalities need more effective ag zoning to meet these crucial changes. The challenges of living next to farms will occupy development planners in decades to come.

Tami Hildebrand, land preservation technician with the Berks County Ag Preservation Board, spoke about ag easement purchases in the county. With the state's help, in the next five years, $50 million can be spent on preservation.

Including state and county funds, there will be $4 million to spend on preservation for 1999, Hildebrand noted. Last year, 198 farms applied for preservation in the county and 23 easements of land were purchased. With the additional money, another 20 or more farms on the list, established newly each year, could be preserved into perpetuity.

The list is not a waiting list, she cautioned. Applications must be sent in on a yearly basis for farms wanting to obtain an easement. To date, 13,000 acres representing 106 farms have been preserved, but we "have a way to go," said Hildebrand.

"We need to update ourselves from a planning aspect," she said, "with more emphasis on it that on a local municipality basis."

Said Clyde Myers, extension agent, "We all need a total agribusiness system in place for us to stay in business. That includes multi-municipal planning."

Dr. Larry Schmidt, Conrad Weiser Area School District superintendent, visited the farm operated by Dennis and Betsy Sattazahn, Womelsdorf. Zahncroft Farm is home to about 55 milking stock and about 50 young stock, all registered Holsteins. The farm, on DHIA test, milks about 22,000 pounds on the rolling herd average, 3.5f, 3.2p, using "no BST or synthetics," said Dennis Sattazahn. The farm records a low SCC.

A high producer, Zahncroft Thor Sandra, 87 VG, milks about 28,000 pounds per year. Milking is to pipeline twice a day, 5 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Above each stall for the cows are pedigree signs to track the sire, blood lines, and score.

Herd health is important to Zahncroft. Dennis spoke about a time when he lost a 7-year-old cow, who was "dead, dead as a doornail," he said. That time, "I rally cried." It was the result of calcium deficiency.

Since then, herd health has been tops. Zahncroft noted that the cows are regularly checked for a variety of potential diseases, including IBR, lepto, Johne's, leukosis, and others.

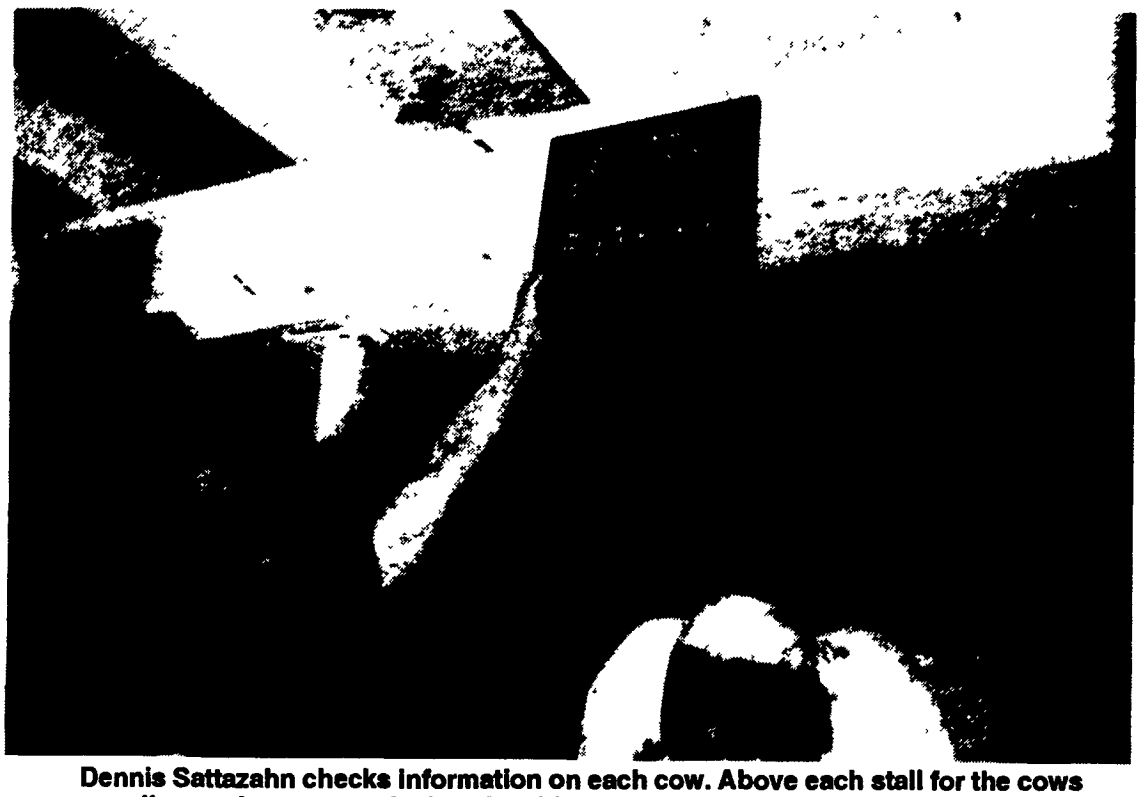
The cows are fed a TMR of alfalfa haylage, high moisture shelled corn, hay, minerals, and soybeans.

The farm is home to 140 acres, 110 of which are tillable.

The farm was preserved in 1996. Ray, father of Dennis, purchased the farm in 1934.

Dennis noted that the cows are replaced either by their own stock or by purchasing. He's paid as much as $4,000 for a cow.

The Sattazahns recently purchased a combine which they use with Clarence Sattazahn who farms next door.



Dennis Sattazahn checks information on each cow. Above each stall for the cows are pedigree signs to track the sire, blood lines, and score.

Natural Dairy Expo To Praise Those Who Graze

MILLHEIM (Centre Co.) — A July 15 field day has been scheduled to be held at a Lancaster County dairy farm to showcase the certified organic dairy operation, as well as provide educational workshops on grazing and herd health.

Billed as the Natural Dairy Expo: Improving Profits and the Environment, it has been scheduled to be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Spring Wood Farm, near Kinzers.

There is to be no registration; anyone desiring to attend is invited.

A lunch is to be made available.

Cosponsored by farm owner Roman Stoltzfoos, a long-time advocate of the success and healthful aspects of certified organic farming and grazing, the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture, and several businesses, the field day event is the first of the year at Stoltzfoos's Spring Wood Farm, located near Kinzers.

Business and related sponsors include Midwestern Bio-Ag, Agri-Dynamics, Pennsylvania Certified Organic, Dairy Network Partnership, and Acres USA.

Stoltzfoos said the event provides the opportunity to view a working grass farm, one that is totally organic.

According to Stoltzfoos, even if the farming practices he uses are not compatible with practices on another farm, attendees should be able to take something from the event.

"No two farms are alike," Stoltzfoos said. "You have to learn to make decisions based on your own circumstances, experiences, and the strengths and weaknesses of your farm."

He said that in his opinion, one problem with pasture walk events is that people who attend them attempt to duplicate the farming operation they've visited.

Stoltzfus explained that very few things on a farm, or any other operations, can be copied exactly and work the same.

However, he said, such events can provide a wealth of new information and inspiration for ideas on how to apply concepts and practices and adapt them into a farming operation.

"Two heads are better than one," Stoltzfoos said, "even if one is a cabbage head."

On a serious note, he said that milk can be produced more cheaply than the current industry standard, and that it will become even more important to do so in light of widespread agricultural commodity pricing problems.

He said it is becoming apparent that the entire crop production system of the Mid Western states is breaking down because of speculative planting of crops that are being overproduced and for most people, don't provide a return on investment.

He predicts that agriculture there will switch to low-cost dairying and that change will put even greater pressure on dairy farmers in the East to lower their costs of production.

Spring Wood Farm, owned and operated by Stoltzfoos, his wife Lucy, and other family members, has 280 acres in grass.

No corn is raised, grain is occassionally used for pasture reseeding.

They milk a mixed herd of 100 dairy cattle; about 30 percent Dutch Belted.

They also compost manure and have implemented a pasture irrigation program in conjunction with barnyard nutrient management practices.

The six educational workshops include: Economics of Dairy Grazing (to include actual financial data); Minerarlized, Energized Forages; Healthy Soils; Health From the Hedgerow; Using Homeopathic Medicine for Prevention and Treatment in Dairy Cattle; Protecting Water Quality by Improving Barnyard Nutrient Management.

Global Soy Forum '99 Offers Diversity

URBANA, Ill. — Global Soy Forum '99, a worldwide salute to the soybean, is shaping up to be a milestone in food industry history.

Expected to draw 1,200 attendees, the Forum is rapidly luring international registrants. Farmers, dietitians, foreign secretaries of agriculture, and myriad scientists are expected to converge in Chicago for the Aug. 4-7 conference.

Event headliners include ABC News 20/20 correspondent John Stossel, who will discuss health issues and worldwide food production partnerships. Cesar Belloso, a large-scale Argentine farmer, will address soybean production in the Americas, and scientists from the United States, Brazil, and Canada will tackle the global dilemma of soybean disease management.

"Global Soy Forum offers a program that is unmatched in its diversity," said Mary Auth, director for Global Soy Forum '99. "At the same time, conferences comprising the Forum will allow everyone attending to delve into their area of expertise."

International audiences are responding with enthusiasm. To date, about 30 percent of registrants hail from outside the United States, Auth said. Among the most notable, Lianzheng Wang, representing China's Ministry of Agriculture; Dr. R.S. Paroda, secretary of the Indian Ministry of Agriculture, and Jorge Hector Larreche, head of INTA, the Argentine ag department's research arm.

Alberto Duque Portugal, president of Brazil's EMBRAPA (Brazilian Corporation of Agricultural Research), will offer the unique perspective of a public-private research venture. Vice President Al Gore and U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman have been invited to join these dignitaries.

"We've never before seen such a diverse and studied group of minds come together to discuss soybean research, markets and production," Auth said. "I think farmers will be amazed to witness firsthand the complexity of their industry and the reach of their crop."

The Forum's Midwest Soybean Conference will target those farmers, offering presentations on technology, production efficiency, marketing and global trade. Dr. Steve Sonka, director of the National Soybean Research Laboratory, will discuss future oil and protein demand, and site-specific management expert Harold Reetz will present Cyberfarm, an agriculture informaiton management program.

In addition, nearly 600 scientists attending the Sixth World Soybean Research Conference will consider issues of soybean processing, utilization and crop improvement. Academia, feed formulators and livestock nutritionists will gather at the soy in animal nutrition portion of the Forum to study soybean protein's role in livestock diets. And, a special, invitation-only food program will target health editors and dietitians, and feature Dr. Bob Arnot, NBC chief medical correspondent for Dateline and Today.

Global Soy Forum '99's diversity is rooted in the soybean crop's varied uses. The protein- and oil-rich soybean has countless applications in human food and animal feed, and in industries from plastics to fuel, adhesives, coatings and paints. An extensive exhibit hall will help represent this cornucopia of soybean products, Auth said.

Global Soy Forum '99 is being coordinated through the Soybean Research and Development Council and the National Soybean Research Laboratory at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Registration fees are $395. A discounted registration rate is available for farmers at $195. For registration information, write Global Soy Forum '99, 1101 W. Peabody, Room 165, Urbana, IL 61801, or call (217) 244-7384. Registrations are also being accepted on-line at www. gsf99.uiuc.edu.

Guernsey Herds Continue Improved

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — The Guernsey breed continues to move forward, and Guernsey breeders continue to strive for more.

The 1998 list of herds with improved production continues to grow with a record number of herds increasing 50 pounds or more of protein according to the American Guernsey Association.

The 19 herds listed by AGA are the largest amount of herds since protein started being recognized in 1994.

The list of herds increasing 1,000 pounds of milk or more stays consistent with the 1997 list, which had the highest amount of herds recognized since 1992, with 33 herds.

The breeders are all on TPE.

Farm-City Day July 10 At Ogden Farm

WELLSBORO (Tioga Co.) — Tioga County will conduct its 9th Annual Farm City Day on Saturday, July 10 at John and Sandra Ogden Farm in Lawrence Township.

Activities will be conducted at 11 a.m. and conclude at 4 p.m.

This year's event will include a 200-acre Holstein dairy operation. Ogden's milk approximately 30 cows and raise all their replacement animals in addition to corn and hay. They have 20 heifers and seven calves on the farm.

Popular events include the pedal tractor contest for youngsters between the ages of 4 to 12, a petting zoo, wagon rides to view cropping, forestry and conservation practices, demonstrations such as sheep shearing and wool spinning, an auction, and educational exhibits. New events are in the planning stages but attendees are assured each year's host farm brings new and different segments to this ever popular event.

The day's activities are free. Hot dogs, milkshakes, ice cream, barbecued chicken and other favorites will be sold by youth organizations such as 4-H, band, and the local fire department. Information on the event is available from Bonnie Keil at (570) 724-1961 or Sherri Butters at (570) 724-4812.

Rains Blessing To Ohio Crop, Low Prices Aren't

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Rain the weekend of May 21 helped Ohio's recently planted crops get off to a good start, although projected low commodity prices due to the nation's high grain surpluses won't be much of a reward for farmers.

"We expect another year of low prices," said Carl Zulauf, agricultural economist at Ohio State University. "The impact on farmers is that this will be the second (consecutive) year of low farm income.

"It is most people's opinion that most farmers who are highly leveraged can easily stand one year of falling income," Zulauf said. "It's when you put two or more years of lower income together that financial strain becomes more widespread."

An otherwise dry spring allowed Ohio farmers to get virtually all their corn and soybeans planted two weeks ahead of time, said Ohio State crop specialists. A continued dry spell would have damaged what could become an outstanding crop year, they said.

"We sort of had it pretty nice this spring in getting crops planted," said agronomist Jim Beuerlein. "A lot of seed got planted in fairly dry soil, and it just laid there waiting for water.

"There are some fields with thin stands now, but the recent rains will correct that," Beuerlein said.

Ohio and Indiana are well ahead of the nation's major soybean-growning area in the Western Corn Belt, where planting is lagging due to rain, Zulauf said. Illinois is the exception, where planting is right on target.

However, it's still not too late for western farmers to get their soybeans planted in time, if the weather starts to cooperate. Favorable growing conditions could add to the nation's already high stockpile of soybeans.

U.S. soybean producers also face competition from overseas oilseed growing areas, where improved weather conditions are expected to raise production, Zulauf said. In particular, Malaysia's palm oil production is expected to return to normal after sustaining drought from the El Nino weather pattern, he said.

Meanwhile, last weekend's showers in Ohio didn't seem to be evenly distributed, leaving some fields still thirsty for water. Dennis Baker, an agriculture/community development agent for Ohio State University Extension in Darke County, said "Any amount of rain would help" but the weekend's showers were spotty and sparse in the west-central Ohio county.

In Wood County, an Ohio State research branch received almost an inch of rainfall last weekend, while some nearby areas received about two inches, said Paul Houdashelt, manager of the Northwestern branch of Ohio State's Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center (OARDC). "It was highly variable up here," Houdashelt said. "There are some portions of the area that are excess in moisture, and other areas that are adequate."

OARDC's Northwestern Branch received 1.22 inches of precipitation for the month as of May 23, compared to 5.26 inches for May 1998. April brought 5.7 inches of precipitation compared to 3.47 inches in April 1998.

Farmers usually finish corn planting and are well into planting soybeans by late May. This year, some corn is as high as 3-4 inches in northwestern Ohio, while soybeans are just starting to emerge from the ground, Houdashelt said.

"We were concerned about how the dry weather was going to affect corn stands," said agronomist Peter Thomison. "If we can get some more rain it wouldn't hurt us any."

Young plants not only need moisture to help them grow, but rain also washes herbicides into soils to be effective on weeds. Beuerlein said that relatively cool temperatures helped keep weed population down while farmers waited for rain.

Ohio's wheat crop is looking "excellent," said plant pathologist Pat Lipps. There is some concern that rainfall could spread a fungal disease known as head scab, which caused major losses in 1995 and 1996, he said. However, the dry conditions over the past month has probably prevented the scab fungus from producing spores, which should limit the number of infections this year.

Regional Center for Dairy Beef Quality Assurance

SERVING THROUGH EDUCATION, PROMOTION & RESEARCH

When low milk cows are kept past breakeven (generally 45 to 60 pounds) or health-compromised cows are kept until they are overtly biologically broken, they begin to incur double losses for the dairy. The cows aren't putting income back into the operation. They're taking up space that a more productive animal could be using, and at the same time they are becoming less valuable as beef animals.

Even the healthy appearing low-milk cow can quickly lose value as she gains weight instead of making milk with the energy she consumes. The per pound beef value diminishes rapidly as cows approach BCS scores of 4 and 5.

"With our cows, we've mainly learned not to hold heavier animals quite as long," said Jeff Grove. Jeff and his brother Jay milk 175 cows on their farm near Shippensburg. He's been paying attention to why cull cows bring the prices they do.

The failure to evaluate is costly. Dairy farmers can benefit when they approach their culling decisions as a positive, productive, and profitable function of dairy management — and view themselves as contributors of valued food products instead of salvage price-takers.

The Regional Center for Dairy Beef Quality Assurance is dedicated to raising producer awareness of key management and decision factors affecting consumer confidence, beef value and dairy profitability. To learn more about dairy beef quality assurance, contact Tammy Weaver at (717) 939-7000.

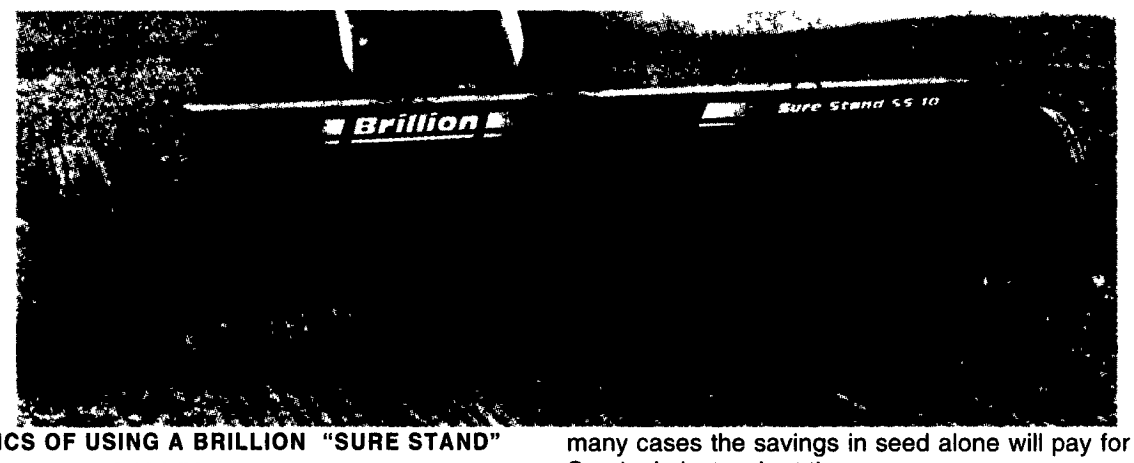
Sure Stand Grass Seeders



THE ERGONOMICS OF USING A BRILLION "SURE STAND" SEEDER

Grass seed is a very expensive commodity. By properly placing the grass seed in the top 1/2" of a properly prepared seedbed you will realize maximum seed germination.

Because of Brillion's precision placement of the seeds, seeding rates can often be cut to nearly half of the rates previously used. In many cases the savings in seed alone will pay for a "Sure Stand" Seeder in just a short time.

Don't risk your crop to another system. Don't settle for less. Use the one seeding method that you can depend on to produce a top stand time after time...a Brillion Sure Stand Seeder.

Zittel Shares Passion For Cheese Making

For visual and taste appeal, Margaret Zittel offers a delicate balance of homemade cheeses including soft, mild, and sharp flavors. Zittel studied cheese making while in France in order to learn how to make top quality cheeses for which Europe is famous.

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

PERKASIE (Bucks Co.) — Those who savor the fine cheeses made by Margaret Zittel are never again satisfied with supermarket varieties.

Chevre-fresh goat cheese, feta, ricotta, parmesan, mozarella, blue cheese—Zittel makes them all using milk from her herd of goats and sheep. The creamy texture, the flavor, and the appearance are superb.

"Making cheese is not difficult," Zittel said. "But making great cheese demands patience, practice, perseverence, detailed observation, creativity, and a love for the process."

Zittel exudes all those qualities, honed by years of practice.

Zittel was introduced to fine European cheeses when she lived in France for six years. She returned to America for several years and greatly missed European cheese. When her doctor husband's career required a two-year stint in Paris, Zittel was delighted with the opportunity to return.

She decided that during her second visit, she would learn French cooking and how to make cheese.

Through acquaintances, Zittel located a family who made cheese and asked if she could pay them to teach her.

"Pay us? You're going to work!" she was told.

Zittel did work. She learned to care for the 450-head goat herd, pick mushrooms, and to do the many other chores required during the two weeks she spent on the farm outside Paris. But most of all, she learned to make wonderful cheese.

Zittel was overwhelmed by the family's generosity.

"When I returned to the U.S., I was depressed that I didn't have 450 goats in my backyard," Zittel said.

At that time, Zittel lived in the state of Washington. She took a course in cheesemaking at Washington State University, which taught proper sanitation methods and variations to cheesemaking. Zittel searched for cheesemaking supplies and quality goat milk to continue cheesemaking.

About a year ago, Zittel and her husband moved to Bucks County where they found the perfect farm for Zittel to raise goats and sheep and continue her love of cheese making.

After moving, Zittel was delighted to find help from the extension service and the Del Val Goat Club in teaching her about pasturing, feeding, and raising quality hay.

"To produce good cheese, you need good milk, which means the animals must be fed quality feed and premium alfalfa," Zittle said.

Zittel is perplexed by American society's hesitancy to try cheese made with goat and sheep milk.

"Most of the world uses milk from sheep and goat. Most of the world's cheese is also derived from these sources, yet Americans often don't want to even try it," she said.

Many people are unaware that people milk sheep. ut the milk from sheep makes some of the creamiest cheese. Sheep milk has more fat and protein than milk from other animals.

Sheep dairying is more prolific in the states of Wisconsin and New York. When Zittel visited a sheep dairy in Wisconsin for a week, she immediately bonded with the sheep.

She purchased several East Friesland dairy sheep, which are bred for the production of milk. She prefers the Nubian breed for goats milk and raises both Nubian goats and East Friesland sheep to obtain milk used in cheesemaking. The East Freisland genetics give volume, and when crossed with Dorsets, produces better quality.

At first, Zittel was so concerned about the herd during the birthing season that she was with them almost constantly.

"I finally realized that animals can have babies without any help from me," said Zittel, who works part time as a nurse at Lehigh Valley Hospital.

Zittel has a chore person who assists in caring for the animals. About 30 minutes is required for milking time using a belly pail bucket system. Goats are milked two times daily and give about 1½ gallons each. Sheep are milked once a day.

A ramp was designed and built to hold three animals at a time for milking. Training sheep to go up the ramp required patience, but they now move easily when milking time comes.

After milking, pasteurization requires an additional 20 minutes.

Sheep lactate 150 days a year.

"I make cheese hot and heavy for three months and then I have a life," Zittel jokes.

"I'm a hobbyist, but I need more time and money control," Zittel said of determining the best decisions to maintain her hobby.

"Right now my refrigerators are overflowing with cheese. I need to get rid of some."

Zittel entertains the desire to start a commercial cheesemaking plant. For this reason, she has always maintain strict quality controls.

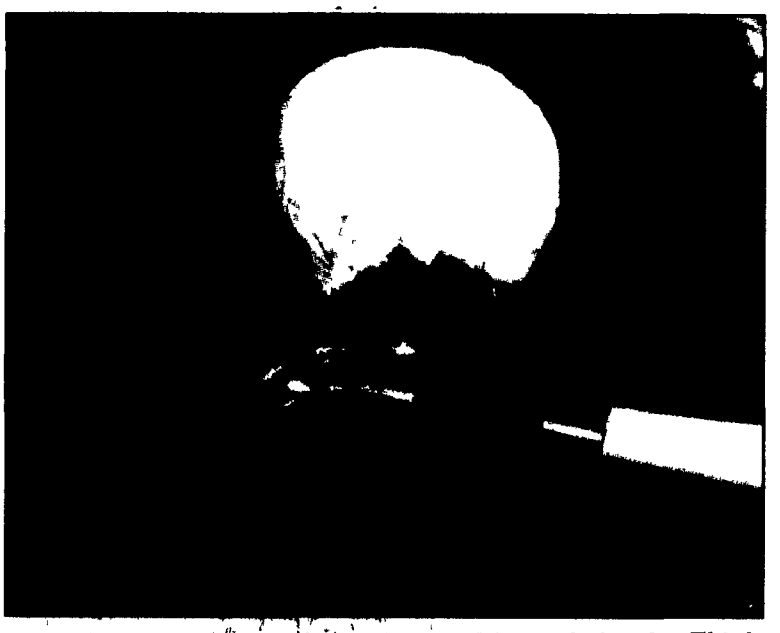
"If the time ever comes to go commercial, I'll be ready. I can envision a commercial operation that produces unique, fine quality cheese," she said.

Cheesemaking has taught Zittel patience. Since many cheeses improve with age.

Zittel said there are six steps to cheesemaking. Each time frame is important and can only be determined by seasoned cheesemakers who rely upon fingers and eyes for testing. Zittel takes careful notes each time to determine what consistency produces better quality cheese.

Some cheeses are meant to be soft and creamy, and some to be hard and dry.

Parmesan cheese tastes best if aged 12 months, according to Zittel. As cheese ages, enzymes break down and produces a stronger flavor, drier, and harder cheese that is easy to grate and has a robust flavor.



Chevre-fresh goat cheese is one of the varieties that Zittel teaches in her cheese making classes.

Mold-ripened chevre cheese uses half sheep and half goats' milk. The creamy cheese must age at least two weeks. As it ages, the mold becomes more dense and pronounced on the surface.

Little changes in the process makes a big difference in the product. Enzymes can be introduced to add punch and flavor.

Feta, a semi-soft crumbly cheese, is placed in a salty, pickled brine. The brine pulls out the whey as the salt enters.

"Salt is always introduced in cheese; otherwise, it would taste bland," Zittel said. "Only kosher salt can be used; never iodized.

You can take the same curds and put in different size molds and age them differently to produce different flavors.

Cheese is identified by form. Tomme is a big round cheese made from goat's milk. It has a darker line around the edge, the creamy area beoomes smaller, and the flavor stronger to eventually make a grated cheese.

Press cheese requires a drying process of several weeks in the refrigerator.

cheese wax on the outside of the round form.

Soft cheeses are put in molds with holes. She fills the molds with curds. As it settles, the molds are refilled 15 minutes later. After it drains, it produces a delicate, fragile mass. Six hours later, the soft mass is removed from the mold and flipped to the other side and placed back into the mold to continue the whey-draining process. Twelve hours later, the cheese is removed and salted. It is placed on a mat and aged in the refrigerator at the lowest possible setting. It's important to control temperature and humidity as the mold grows.

Whey can be turned into ricotta cheese, a soft spoonable cheese with a very fine curd.

Some of her friends are appalled to hear that she rises at 4:30 a.m. to begin the cheesemaking process. But many of her friends delight in attending her cheese parties.

After years of living in France, Zittel knows that the proper way to eat a variety of cheeses is to start with the mildest cheese so you don't confuse the flavors. Clean your palate by eating some fruit or bread before going on to the next variety. Nibble slowly and savor each small piece.

In addition to goats and sheep, Zittel keeps a mixed flock of 30 chickens that produce eggs in white, brown, and blue hues. The chickens are always happy to be fed the leftover whey from cheese making.

Zittel wants to pass on her cheesemaking knowledge by teaching others. Here is a list of upcoming classes:

- Chevre-fresh goat cheese, July 9 and 10.
- Feta and ricotta, July 23 and 24.
- Parmesan, August 6 and 7.
- Mozarella, August 20 and 21.
- Blue cheese, August 30 and 31.

Classes begin promptly at 10 a.m. and last 4 to 5 hours. In addition to the hands-on cheesemaking process, Zittel will present information on proper supplies required and where they can be purchased. She will show the cheesemaking process from milking the animals to the end.

Cost is $40 each class or $5 off for two or more classes or $15 off for the entire series.

To register for classes or for more information, call (215) 258-5149.

Kids Attend Safety Camp

YORK (York Co.) — Once again this year, York County 4-H will be hosting a Progressive Farmer Home and Safety Day Camp, which is being sponsored by the Penn State Cooperative Extension and the PA Department of Health.

The camp, which teaches children to be aware of safety hazards in the home, and on the farm, will be held on Friday, July 9, from 8:30 a.m. - 4 p.m., at the 4-H Center, located off of route 116 near Bair. Admission of $3 for one child or $5 for two or more children in the same family, includes all camp activities, a T-shirt for each camper, as well as lunch and a goodies bag.

This year will also feature these workshops for adults: health screenings, skin cancer screening, a gun lock safety program and others.

For registration information, contact Mary Jo Kraft or Linda Spahr at (717) 840-7408.

This year's camp is for children ages 8-13. Children do not have to live on a farm to attend this camp. All children will benefit from the many hands-on workshops. In particular, a lawn mower safety demonstration will emphasize this importance of being careful around lawn mowers this summer. In addition, children will learn about first aid, be able to use a 911 simulator to make a "practice" emgergency call; learn about chemical and poison hazards; helmet safety, tractor rollover prevention and many more important things. In addition, Life Lion will be landing at the site.

Each year, over 300 children are killed in a farm or farm related accidents. More than 27,000 are seriously injured or permanently disabled.

They've been used to salutes heroes and holidays.

They've been used to salute cartoon characters, wildflowers, automobiles. With annual dependability they pay tribute to love with a new graphic depiction. And we're all stuck on 'em.

Postage stamps, that is.

We hundreds of millions of Americans may come from all walks of life, all corners of the country, all sorts of colors, creeds, faiths and heritages, but we have at least one thing in common. If we have an address, we get mail.

Long before the advent of cyberspace, our mailboxes were proclaiming, "you've got mail." Well, geez, if nothing else, one could at least count on getting bills and junk advertisements.

Lately, the Postal Service, at least in several local York County rural post offices with which I'm familiar, has begun marketing itself. While once the lobbies of post offices displayed little more exciting stuff that the obligatory Internal Revenue Service tax forms (who wants extra of those?) and those grainy photocopies of "most wanted" criminal mug shots, today they've become virtual gift shops. For fairly reasonable prices, you can now buy colorful ties for the favorite guy in your life, lovely note paper, postcards, gift wrap, even jewelry. All with a postal theme, many of them holiday related.

But even if none of those trip your consumer trigger, you still need stamps. (Believe me, you can't mail anything without them. I stuck an insurance check in the mail just the other day with a whole stack of other bills, and accidentally missed putting a stamp on that envelope. It promptly came back shaking it's "returned for postage" finger at me.

The day some Postal Service forward thinker suggested marketing adhesive stamps was truly a "red letter" day for those of us who abhorred the taste of the glue (yuk!) on the old-fashioned "licking" ones. Yes, one could wet them with a sponge — and then one would have them sticking to one's fingers.

While Old Glory is an always-loved symbol of the country, and adds a professional and businesslike touch to a letter, when available I opt for the colorful theme stamps. So long as they stick themselves fast.

Those annual Valentine's Day "love" stamps are a personal favorite. I even used one this year to send our income tax payment on April 14 to the IRS. Except for the one put out a couple of years ago with the pair of cherubs, which I initially liked, then decided they were somewhat gargoyle-ish looking. Nature-related stamps are my usual choice, depicting animals or wildflowers or trees. Currently, our mail is going out ornamented with seasonal strawberries, blueberries and raspberries.

But... can your believe this? There is no U.S. postage stamp which pays tribute to the dairy cow. No commemorative honor to the "mother of mankind" whose devoted production has helped to nourish and sustain billions of peoples' diets around the world. No tribute (egads!) to the source of ice cream. Now cow stamps! In a country which has commemorated Elvis Presley on its stamps for crying out loud.

So, it just tickles me to no end that there's a grassroots movement growing from some of the country's dairy farmers to change that. And wouldn't it be fitting to have a cow-salute postage stamp in place by the first Dairy Month of the new millennium, honoring the dairy cow?

How appropriate. Want to help?

Send your comments about a dairy cow stamp to: U.S. Postal Service, Citizen's Stamp Advisory Committee, 475 L'Enfant Plaze, Washington, D.C., 20260-2437.

In lieu of colorful stamps of the dairy cow breeds, I'd even settle for a plain black stamp with the white-lettered message "Got Milk?" stamped on them.

Keep on Your Toes to Prevent Falls

Sometimes we get busy or distracted and don't think about what we are doing to put ourselves at risk. We may laugh at the pratfalls in a slapstick comedy, but a fall can be a very serious matter, especially as we get older.

Falls in homes can occur for many reasons. Some are related to the features of the house, its furnishings, or the activities in which we engage. Some are related to our own bodies, our posture, gait, visual abilities, diseases, how well our shoes fit, or the effect of medications we are taking. In most cases, both types of factors play a role in why someone has fallen.

If you recognize the limitations placed on you by your body, you can begin to identify places where a fall might occur and look for solutions for preventing it. After talking to a group at a senior day-care center on fall injury prevention, one woman told me that these methods are things that we should know already, but it is good to be reminded of them.

Let's start by considering problems related to vision. One obvious solution is good lighting. Seventy-give watt bulbs are recommended in all rooms, hallways, and stairways. But keep in mind that some fixtures taxe a maximum of 60 watts. Because of the fire hazard, the maximum wattage should never be exceeded. Night lights are inexpensive and are helpful in lighting hallways and other areas at night.

You should be able to turn on a light when entering a room and turn it off when leaving a room. If light switches are not present at each doorway, consider installing motion activated or photoelectric lights. Allow times for your eyes to adjust to the different light level when going from light and dark areas. Witnin the reach of your bed, have a place to keep your eyeglasses and a flashlight.

Too much light can create a problem with glare, especially for person with cataracts. Glare from light bulbs can be dealt with by adding or changing a lampshade. For ceiling lights, a dimmer switch will allow you to adjust the lighting level to what you need. Glare from bright sunlight coming through the the windows can be controlled with window treatments.

Older persons require three times as much contrast for the detection of objects in the environment. Contrast in light and dark surfaces can be especially important at stairways. If you cannot tell when you've reached the last step you may be susceptible to falling. A baseboard of a contrasting color will help if the floor and wall surfaces blend into one another because they are very close to the same color. Painting the top riser or the bottom step a different color will also make it more distinguishable.

If maintaining balance is a problem what can you do? For stairways, a solid, secure handrail is essential. Better yet, a handrail on each side of the stairway. If one arm is weak, the handrail on each side is helpful because whether going up or down, you can use the stronger arm to grasp the railing.

Grab bars at the bathtub, shower, or toilet are essential. Towel bars are not grab bars. A properly installed grab bar is attached to the studs in the wall and will withstand much more of a pull. Keep soap, shampoo, and a towel in a place where you don't have to bend to reach them. Also use a slip resistant mat in the tub and on the bathroom floor.

Solid, stable furniture that will not tip over when leaned on can also be important for support when moving through a room. Never use a chair to climb on. Instead, if necessary to reach something, use a stepstool with a handrail or a sturdy ladder.

If dealing with mobility problems, weak leg strength, or low foot swing, avoid deep pile carpeting. Throw rugs should have non-skid backing. Deep or low chairs also should be avoided. The bed should be at a good height for ease of movement on or off it.

Keep electrical and telephone cords out of the pathways Fans and heaters should be kept out of traffic paths to avoid tripping.

These are just a few suggestions of how to recognize and deal with various potentially hazardous situations around the house. No matter what your age or ability, these suggestions can make your home a safer and more enjoyable place to live.

Recently Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Jennifer Dotterer and State Alternates Lacy Jean Zakostelecky and Megan Meyers stopped by Lancaster Farming's office to select the winners through a drawing. Names of the winners will be printed in the July 3 issue.

We wish everyone could win a prize. Although that is impossible, we know from your letters that this annual recipe contest is a favorite of our readers. Many subscribers write to tell us how much they enjoy the recipes, the photographs, and writeups that accompany the entries. Without your cooperation, we could not offer this delightful combo. ICE BOX ROLLS

1 cup milk
½ cup butter
4 cups flour
2 packages yeast
2 eggs
1½ teaspoon salt
½ heaping cup sugar

Melt butter in saucepan. Add milk and slowly bring to a boil. Cool to lukewarm. Add yeast and a little sugar. Cover with kitchen towel and let yeast begin to activate (approximately 10 minutes).

Beat eggs until light and add remaining sugar. Continue beating until light. Add flour and milk/yeast mixture alternately. Dough should be soft. Additional flour may be needed. Put dough in greased bowl. Lightly grease top of dough and cover with plastic wrap. Put in refrigerator overnight.

Divide dough into four pieces. Roll each as pie crust. Spread with softened butter. Cut into wedges. Roll from wide end to point. Place on greased cookie sheet. Let rise. Bake 15 minutes at 350 degrees.

My husband and I very much enjoy reading Lancaster Farming. I especially enjoy the wonderful recipes that your readers submit. I can always count on finding good recipes, usually with ingredients I have on hand or can find easily at the grocery store.

My husband and I moved on his parents' farm a little more than a year ago. We farm about 60 acreas and our dairy barn has room for 30 cows. We all like farm life, especially our two boys, Andrew, 5, and Ryan, 3. They are the happiest with a lot of room to explore.

My husband Burnard and son Burnard Roger own and operate a dairy farm. The herd consists of Holstein and Jersey mix. The milk they produce is shipped to Land-O-Lakes every other day. We own about 130 acres and rent 75 acres.

I have been married to Burnard for 32 years. In addition to being a housewife and helping out with the farmwork, I am employed as a part-time secretary with the local public school system.

My son Burnard Roger also operates Cline Mums. Over the past few years, his business has grown to include 1,000 chrysanthemums, pansies, and flowering cabbage and kale.

I also have a daughter named Karen. Like my son, she is single. Karen is employed as an advisor with the University of Delaware. This fall, she will begin working on her studies for an MBA in Management. Eventually, she would like to work in human resources.

What's perfect for entertaining? The Cheese Course, an assortment of three to four cheeses offered as a separate course at a meal. It's often served as a pre-entree or dessert course at brunch, lunch, or dinner.

Cheese Course Makes A Grand Return

Once considered a European tradition, the Cheese Course is appearing on menus in America's most popular restaurants. The Cheese Course can be as simple as a few cheeses laid out on a board in the center of a table for all to enjoy, or more formal as guests are provided with a personal array of cheeses to savor as they sit at the table.

Try offering a variety of flavors and textures—some familiar, others new. Plan on about ¼ -pound cheese per person.

Position generous pieces of cheese on a large plate, wooden board or piece of marble and place in the center of the table with several knives. If you prefer to provide guests with their own personal cheese plates, slice smaller cheese portions and serve on individual plates. Always serve cheese at room temperature to ensure its fullest flavor.

Try serving the cheese with crusty bread, an assortment of fruits, vegetables, nuts and crackers.

Check out page B2 for the feature story on Margaret Zittel, who makes wonderful cheese from goat and sheep milk and who teaches cheese making classes. She is adept at creating attractive displays to serve cheese courses.

To learn more about serving a cheese course at your next gathering, request a copy of "The Return of the Cheese Course" leaflet by sending a self-addressed, stamped business-sized envelope to "The Return of the Cheese Course," ADA/DC Middle Atlantic, 325 Chestnut St., Suite 600, Philadelphia, PA 19106.

Also, two brochures on serving cheese: "Breakfast With Cheese" and "Hip to Dip With Cheese" are available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East, 5950 Sharon Woods Blvd., Columbus, Ohio 44329.

In a saucepan, stir milk, chocolate chips, and 2 tablespoons butter over low heat until smooth. Remove from heat and stir in nuts and 2 teaspoons vanilla.

Pat two-thirds oat mixture into ungreased 15½ x10½ x2-inch baking pan.

Spread chocolate mixture over oat layer; sprinkle with remaining oat mixture.

I am 19 years old and the oldest of six kids. We live on a dairy farm in Bedford. We milk 70 cows three times a day so we are kept busy. I enjoy working in the kitchen in my sparetime. I especially like baking cookies and brownies and my family enjoys eating them.

I live on a dairy farm with my husband Tom, and our five children, Troy, Amy, Alisa, and Ashley in Bellefonte. We milk about 90 cows. My children are active in Centre County Junior Holstein Club, the Benner Community 4-H Club, and the Centre County 4-H Dairy Club. I am a 4-H leader and our family is active in promoting our industry by having tours or hosting meetings on our farm. Every year our dairy is host to the kindergarten classes at Benner Elementary School, which is located across the road from our farm. The children get a tour of our farm, starting with the calves and ending with the cows. They learn what the animals eat and how they are cared for when they are sick. The students also get to make and take home their own individual fresh butter that they have made from cream.

ANSWER — LaVonne Bender, Meyersdale, wanted a recipe for cream-filled doughnuts. Thanks to Barbara Hoover, New Holland, for sending a recipe.

Filled Doughnuts

2 cups milk, lukewarm
½ cup sugar
7 cups flour
½ cup warm water
½ cup shortening
2 eggs
2 packages yeast
2 teaspoons salt

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Mix together sugar, salt, shortening, and eggs; add to dissolved yeast mixture. Add flour and milk. Mix together and knead well. Place in a greased bowl. Cover with a thin cloth and let rise in warm place for two hours until mixture is almost double in size. Punch down and let rise one hour.

On lightly floured board, roll dough ¾ -inch thick. Cut with doughnut cutter (since these are filled doughnuts, remove the center of the doughnut cutter). Let rise another 1½ hours. Drop into hot fat 365 degrees and fry each side until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. When cool, fill with doughnut creme filling below.

Doughnut creme filling: Beat one egg white until stiff. Add ½ cup shortening, and 1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar. Mix together. Add 4 tablespoons milk, 1 tablespoon flour, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 3½ cups confectioners' sugar. Beat well. Cut a hole in doughnut and fill. When filled, coat doughnuts with confectioners' sugar.

ANSWER — For Carol Dehoff, who wanted a chow chow recipe, here is one from Barbara J. Hoover, New Holland.

Mother's Chow Chow

2 quart green beans
2 quarts yellow beans
6 quarts sliced carrots
3 quarts pickles, drained
2 quarts small onions
4 quarts red, yellow, and green peppers
2 quarts cauliflower
2 quarts corn
4 quarts small green tomatoes
2 quarts celery
2 quarts lima beans

Cut vegetables into bite-sized pieces. Cook each separately in salted water until tender, just parboiling the peppers, tomatoes, and cauliflower. Drain all the vegetables, except celery.

Syrup:

10 cups water or celery juice
10 cups apple vinegar
16 cups sugar
3 cups prepared mustard

Mix together sugar and mustard. Gradually add water and vinegar. Mix vegetables in large pan. Pour syrup over mixture; mix well. Heat to boiling; seal in sterilized jars. Place pint jars in boiling water canner for 5 minutes; quarts for 10 minutes.

Here is another one sent in by Pat Elligson, Millers, Md. Pat writes that this recipe dates back to the 1930s.

Chow Chow

¼ peck green tomatoes
¼ peck string beans
3 cups shelled limas
3 cups corn
5 green peppers
1 quart onions
1 large head cauliflower
2 cups sugar
½ cup salt
2 tablespoons celery seed
2 tablespoons mustard seed
½ pound ground mustard
1 tablespoon tumeric powder

Cut string beans in pieces; break cauliflower into flowerets; add lima beans and corn and cook about 25 minutes. Chop onion, peppers, and tomatoes.

Heat the vinegar until hot, then add sugar, salt, and spices, which have been mixed together.

Drain with water from the cooked vegetables and add to the hot vinegar. Add the chopped vegetables and cook about 25 minutes, stirring very often. Pour into sterilized jars and seal. Place pint jars in boiling water canner for 5 minutes; quarts for 10 minutes. An adaption has been made to confer to recommended canning methods.

CHEDDAR CHOWDER

2 cups diced potatoes
½ cup finely chopped carrots
½ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 cups boiling water
¼ cup butter
¼ cup flour
2 cups milk
2 cups shredded sharp cheddar cheese

Boil water in a Dutch oven and add the prepared vegetables, salt, and pepper. Cover and simmmer 10 minutes. Do not drain.

In a separate pan, melt the butter. Whisk the flour into the milk until smooth, then add to butter. Stir over medium heat until thick and bubbly, then add cheese. Continue stirring until the cheese has melted.

To the vegetables, add only one of the following meat variations:

8 slices crisply cooked bacon, crumbled
1 cup cooked ham, finely chopped
1 cup loose sausage, cooked and drained
½ pound hotdogs, cooked and chopped

Add the cheese sauce to the vegtetable/meat mixture. Heat thoroughly, but do not boil. Serves 6-8.

This hearty chowded is a favorite with our family. A multiple batch is always made! Friends who try it insist on taking a copy of the recipe home with them.

I grew up on a dairy farm with registered Holsteins, was active in 4-H for 10 years, and (many years ago) served as dairy princess for Harford/Baltimore County, Md. My husband Clay and I live on a 10-acre farmette. We have a few laying hens and purchase a few lots of feeder pigs yearly to raise and sell to friends and family. We also havef a large garden each year.

Clay is self-employed as a blacksmith, creating custom-made architectural ironwork, hardware, railings — but no horsehoes! His business is located in our home. I assist him with the office work and bookkeeping.

We are blessed with four children — Corinne Joy, 8, twins Holly Grace and Tara Faith, 5½, and Logan Henry, 2. We have been homeschooling for three years.

We are extremely thankful we can raise our family in a rural setting and have the chance to share much of our day with each other. When I have free time (not often!), I enjoy sewing/smocking special-occasion outfits for my kids, photography, and genealogical research.

½ teaspoon salt

Make eight sandwiches using ham and cheese. Put in greased 9x13-inch pan. Mix eggs, milk, mustard, and salt and pour over sandwiches. Refrigerate overnight. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Makes 8 servings.

For a delicious breakfast, we like to put this in the oven before we go out to milk the cows.

What's Happening At Lancaster Extension

by

Elizabeth Smith

Summer Intern

"Do you know how to paint a cow?

"No wait, maybe I want a kitten, yes definitely a kitten. Can you do that?"

"Of Course I can! I am Elizabeth Smith, Lancaster County 4-H Summer Assistant and today, professional face painter. I can paint kittens, horses and my personal favorite, cows, with the greatest of ease. But please don't ask for a Pokemon becau. e I'm not really sure what they look like.

Okay, by this point you are probably wondering why the 4-H summer assistant would be out painting faces, is this really part of my job?

In a nut shell, yes.

As 4-H summer assistant, it is my job to go to various 4-H functions all over Lancaster County to help coordinate them. The face painting incident that I just described took place during Family Dairy Days at Oregon Dairy last Wednesday night. 4-H was asked to help run some of the various stands for this event, so there I was, with three other Lancaster County 4-Hers painting the face of every child that came in my line. I never painted faces before this experience, but I now consider myself a professional; at least at painting cows!

As a summer assistant I never know where my job is going to take me next. It could include everything from face painting to cleaning toilets! That's right I said cleaning toilets. Last Monday I traveled to 4-H Camp Shehaqua, located in the Pocono Mountains. Camp Shehaqua is the destination of this years' Lancaster County 4-H camp, and it was my responsibility to travel there to help get the camp ready for the hundreds of 4-Hers that will be visiting it over the summer. As you may already have guessed, I was bathroom detail! It was my job, with the company of my fellow travelers, to perform the duty of scrubbing various toilets and sinks located on the campground. It was hard work, but at least no one was around to take a picture!

I have to admit that my job isn't always this out of the ordinary. Most of my 4-H responsibilities are in the more normal category of 4-H events. For example, last Tuesday night was Lancaster County's 4-H Presentation Night. On this occasion, I was the official scorekeeper.

What this really means is that I sat in the hall with my trusty calculator and tallied up the scores of the presentations that the 4-Hers were giving. Now while this may not have been quite as glamorous as cleaning toilets, I must admit it was a lot cleaner and didn't require me to wear rubber gloves!

Over the course of the summer, I plan to be doing a multitude of different things as Lancaster County's 4-H Summer Assistant, and I plan to take everyone right along with me!

That's right, this summer I will be writing weekly updates about my toilet-scrubbing, face painting adventures as Lancaster's 4-H summer assistant. I predict it's going to be a wild and interesting summer, so sit back and enjoy.

Oh, one more thing, does anyone know what a Pokemon looks like?

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Toni LeVan, Galeton, wanted a recipe for oyster filling. Thanks to N.E.K., Lebanon, for sending her mother's recipe.

Oyster Filling

1 loaf bread, broken in pieces
4 eggs beaten
1 cup milk
Salt and pepper to taste
1 dozen stewing oysters

Place bread in large bowl to mix. Combine beaten eggs with milk and salt and pepper. Mix in oysters until they are fine.

Onions, to taste
Celery, to taste
½ cup butter

Saute onions and celery butter until browned. Add to bread mixture.

Place in casserole dish covered tightly with foil. Bake at 350 degrees about 1½ hours or until done.

ANSWER — Ed Gottshall, Ephrata, wanted a recipe for cinnamon rolls made from pie crust. Thanks to Robin Genovese, Hubbardsville, N.Y., for sending a recipe.

Cinnamon Rolls

⅓ cup plus 1 tablespoon shortening
1 cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2-3 tablespoons water

Cut shortening into flour and salt until particles form coarse crumbs. Sprinkle with water, one tablespoon at a time, tossing with fork until flour is moistened.

Gather dough into ball, shape on floured board and roll out. Spread with butter, cinnamon, and sugar to taste (the more, the better). Cut into strips, roll and bake in 400 degree oven for 10-12 minutes until dough is slightly browned.

Sheep Day Camp Held At Bedford Fairgrounds

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — About 50 students from around Bedford County participated in the first "Sheep Camp," sponsored by the Bedford County Extension Office and held at the Bedford County Fairgrounds.

Lambs were provided by area farmers to avoid transporting sheep from each individual farm.

With perfect June weather providing a backdrop of blue skies and cool breezes, the participants spent the morning learning about selection of sheep and feeds and nutrition.

A picnic lunch was followed by a workshop on fitting and sportsmanship/ethics. The day closed with a mock show.

Kyler Myers, Cody Waltemere, and Ben Sollenberger decide this sample is bran.

Rachael Conrad, who owns seven sheep, and Malorie Clark, who has a flock of 28, will be participating in the Bedford County Fair. Both girls were learning showing and fitting techniques at the Sheep Camp. They are members of Champman's Run 4-H.

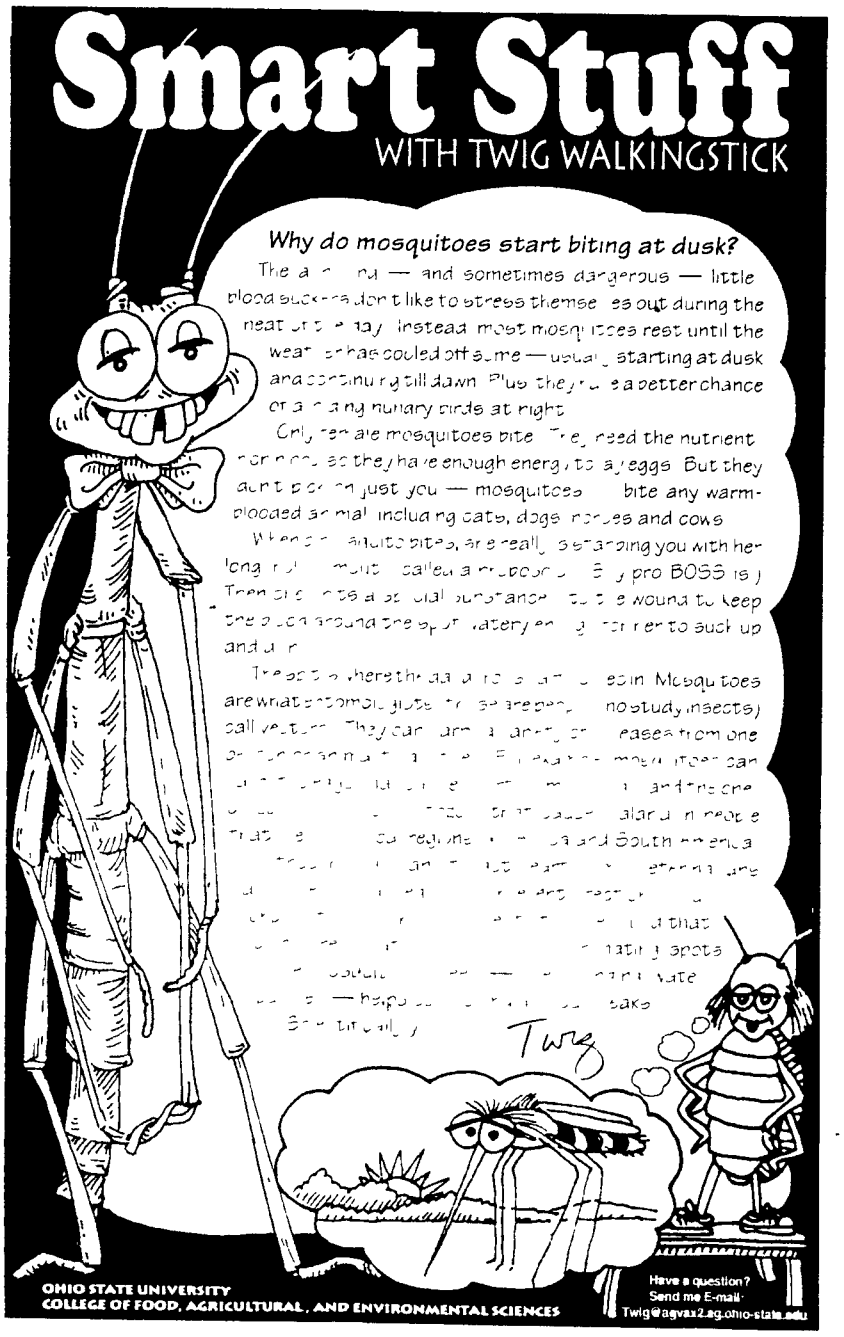
Amanda Stanton, Everett, and Jasmine Grimes and Carly Imler both of New Enterprise, enjoy a sack lunch under a shade tree. All three were enthusiastic about their experiences at the camp.

Health Walking

What makes a walk a workout? It's largely a matter of pace and distance. When you are walking to exercise, you don't stroll, stop to window shop or visit. You move out at a steady clip that is brisk enough to make your heart beat faster and to cause you to breathe more deeply.

Here are some tips to help you to develop a good walking style:

- Keep your head erect and back straight and let your arms swing loosely at your side.
- Stay relaxed, breathe deeply and take comfortable steps.
- Always land on your heel and roll forward, finally pushing off the ball of your foot. Walking flat-footed or on the balls of your feet may cause fatigue or soreness.
- Your toes should point straight ahead. "Toeing-in" and "toeing-out" are inefficient ways of walking and may aggravate or contribute to leg/hip joint problems.
- How far, fast and often? Questions about how far, how fast and how often you should walk can be answered by listening to your body. No one can tell you exactly how far or how fast to walk at the start, but you can determine the proper pace and distance by experimenting. If you've been inactive for a long time, it will take time to get into shape. Build up slowly. Try to set goals, otherwise you will be tempted to push yourself too far too quickly and exercise will cease to be enjoyable. If in doubt, check with your doctor.
- How far? You may want to start by walking for just a few minutes and then gradually increase the time. Walking needs to be done for at least 30 minutes if your body is to achieve any "training effect."
- How fast? The speed at which you walk is less important than the time you devote to it, although it is recommended that you walk as briskly as your condition permits. The "talk test" can help you find the right pace. You should be able to carry on a conversation while walking. If you are too breathless to talk, you're going too fast. When walking, should you develop dizziness, pain, nausea or other unusual symptoms, slow down or stop. If your problem persists, see your physician before walking again.
- How often? Regularity is the key. To be effective, most authorities agree that you should exercise at least three times a week, preferably on alternate days. Fitness cannot be stored.
- Warm Up and Cool Down. Begin each exercise session with 5 to 10 minutes of bending, twisting, and stretching the head, arms, shoulders, legs and ankles. These exercises will give your body a chance to limber up, get your circulation going and loosen up muscles and joints. All stretching should be done slowly without bouncy, jerky motions.



'Going To Be Odd Being A Nobody'

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — "It is going to be odd being a nobody again," said Somerset County Dairy Princess Missy Powell, who on June 26 in Berlin will crown a successor to the title and relinquish the responsibilities it reflects.

"It will be odd not to pass out ribbons (at dairy shows)," she added, looking ahead to summer activities.

"I hate to see it end. I'll miss the people, but not the running," she reported, relating how genuinely she has enjoyed the dairy princess role.

"It is something every little girl dreams of being and I actually am one."

Surprising revelations came out of the promotional experiences required by the princess. For one, she fell under the spell of radio. Now, the young woman who is entering her senior year of high school at Salisbury-Elk Lick next fall, is wondering if radio can fit into her future.

All this time her plans have leaned toward the physical therapy field. Although she still means to pursue the profession, she also hopes to retain a place in her life for the broadcast media.

Television is another matter for the camera-shy teen.

"The most nerve-wracking experience I had was last Friday when WJAC, Channel 6 called and asked for an interview," she said. "I'm really camera-shy."

Dairy Month puts Missy into the fast lane as far as appearances and duties. These are averaging more than one a day. Small wonder that she speaks of a welcomed break from galavanting all over the scenic country.

Missy says she chose, when visiting schools, to talk to all classes rather than just one. She could cover a wide area of dairy material using the Super Moo dummy from her skit. It got a lot of wear she said.

Kids were fascinated with the cow, a role assumed by her mother, Kim Powell, who donned the black and white suit to assist the eldest of four children.

With Charles Powell, the parents' other children are Ben, 15; Nikki, 14; and Christopher, 11.

There also were some firsts for a county dairy princess when Missy talked to homeschool groups. There was a Bible School as well.

Senior citizen groups invited her company and she made numerous trips to Women, Infants and Children (W.I.C.).

Missy says her greatest struggle with self-confidence usually occurred when she knew her audience or addressed farm groups. With farmers, the concern was their superior knowledge of dairy topics and their greater experience.

On the other hand, she was comfortable enough with non-farm groups and made presentations with ease.

Interestingly enough, the pencils, erasers, and magnets that are always passed out at these affairs are every bit as popular with senior citizens as they are with elementary kids, noted Missy.

Her services, when the reign has concluded, will be needed in the small dairy operation the family runs. And the dairy shows to prepare for are looming ahead.

Her year as the Somerset County Dairy Princess has fattened a scrapbook for Melissa Powell of Meyersdale.

As Casselman Valley 4-H members, Missy and her siblings are all dairy exhibitors. Missy plans to show two animals in the Jersey breed

Ben will show a Holstein and a Jersey; Nikki, two Jerseys and a Holstein; Chris, two Holsteins and a Jersey.

"You gain so much from the dairy princess experience," Missy says, offering advice to interested young women.

"I will tell them it is a big commitment but worth it in the end," she said. "It is a commitment you have to stick to."

"June is here," she states with a bit of melancholy detected in her voice, "but I'm not ready to let go, yet. It is like I'm just getting warmed up."

There are other avenues where Missy would be welcomed to lend herself to the dairy industry and to these she may follow her mom's example and volunteer to serve

At some time, she anticipates an opportunity to judge a state dairy princess pageant, she reported.

"The state pageant is really neat," she observed.

Missy found the state training was most helpful, as were the incentives Allied Milk Producer's Cooperative, Inc. provided for her achievements.

A dairy princess is not her own person. Her visibility for the dairy industry will label her "special" for years to come.

Never a "nobody," she will likely continue to promote dairy products longer after her crown has become little more than memorabilia.

Centre County Crowns Princess

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

PLEASANT GAP (Centre Co.) — On June 5, three contestants vied for the 1999 Centre County Dairy Princess title. Lori Connelly of Pennsylvania Furnace, was crowned as the 1999 Centre County Dairy Princess. Connelly resides on Fairbrook Farms with her parents Ronald and Denise Connelly. Lori recently graduated from State College Area High School and is enrolled in Penn State University majoring in animal sciences. Her activities in school included The Dance Marathon for Cerebral Palsy, High Academic Honor Roll, and she is a Power of PAWS award recipient.

In addition to her activities in school, she has served in numerous offices of the Mt. Nittany 4-H Dairy Club, The Centre Hall 4-H Ag Club, president of the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Executive Committee, Centre Co./PA Dairy Quiz Bowl, and has shown Holstien dairy cattle for nine years. She also served as a Pennsylvania representative for the National 4-H Dairy Leadership Conference in Madison, Wisconsin. Lori enjoys showing dairy cattle and market swine and spending time with friends and family.

In Connelly's acceptance speech, she stated, "I am honored to represent such a strong group of industry leaders in Centre County. I will do my best to represent you, the dairy farmers well throughout my reign."

The pageant, led by Master of Ceremonies John Ishler was held at the Logan Grange Hall in Pleasant Gap. The panel of judges for the evening including Cheryl Glick of Mifflin County, Charles Schillings of Huntingdon County, and Lisa Shaw of Franklin County, had their work cut out for them as all the contestants gave strong presentations.

Each contestant presented both a 3-5 minute speech and skit for the audience. The judges also held interview sessions prior to the pageant and each contestant was given an impromptu question.

While the judges made their decision, the 1998 Centre Co. Dairy Princess, Billie Jo Bird gave her heartfelt farewell, closing her reign.

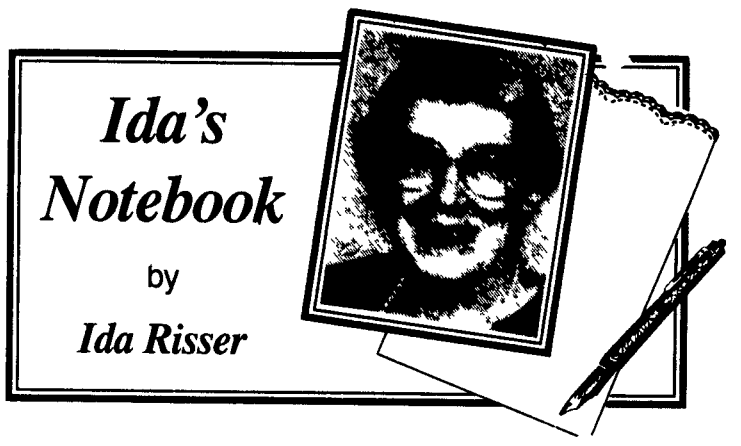
As the night came to a close, the judges named Emily Cloninger of Centre Hall, the 1999 First Alternate Princess. Emily is the 17-year-old daughter of Dr. Robert and Ellen Cloninger, also of Centre Hall. She will be a senior this year at Penns Valley Area High School where she is involved in Marching Band, Student Council and managing the track team. She has also been involved in Dairy Quiz Bowl, Centre Hall 4-H Ag Club, Mt. Nittany 4-H Dairy Club, Penns Valley 4-H Beef Club, and Pa. Junior Holstein Executive Committee.

In her spare time she enjoys reading, working with animals and Dairy Bowl. Emily presented a speech entitled, "The Dairy Farmer." Her skit, accompanied by stuffed animals and tea sets was entitled, "Noontime Milk Party."

Helping the princesses to promote this year will be a number of Dairy Maids, Misses and Ambassadors including Amanda Gates, Mandee Bierly, Ashley Bird, Amanda Corl, Rebecca Cloninger, Courtney Klingler, Miranda Ullmer, Naomi Ullmer, Bethany Wasson, Krystal Wasson, and Nicole Wasson.

The evening concluded with an ice cream social for all to enjoy.

To book the princesses, contact Candy Wasson at (814) 237-2339.



In eight days it will be the fourth of July. Summer is here with it's picnics and family gatherings. Today July 4th does not create the excitement that it did when I was a child.

My six sisters and I looked forward to the fourth as a time when we could play a little more. Usually, our parents kept us very busy either in the kitchen or in the fields. But on this day, they allowed us to sit in the tall grass along the road and shoot our cap pistols. We imagined we were scaring the passing motorists.

In the evening our 1923 Overland car carried us to a place called Owl Hill where we could view the fireworks from a nearby town. Other cars also came to view the bursts of light in the heavens. One evening we parked along the road as usual but apparently too close to a ditch. You see, when we tried to go home, we discovered that we were stuck. As our car was lightweight, several men simply picked it up and put it on the road again. Of course, we children considered this quite an adventure. However, our father was embarrassed and angry all at the same time.

The excitement of the holiday dims as the years go by. In fact, our enthusiasm for many holidays takes on a different meaning as we grow older. Christmas is not a dash downstairs to check our long brown stockings hung along the wall. And, Thanksgiving isn't a day to visit Grandparents as they are long gone. But, with some grandchildren living nearby, we can latch on to a bit of their fervor for the coming holidays.

Allied Milk Producer's Little Red Barn Almost As Good As The Cow Herself

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET COUNTY — Allied Milk Producer's Cooperative Inc. might pose a riddle: "What has a six-gallon bag and can dispense milk in two colors at three spigots?"

The answer is Allied's Little Red Barn that has been newly refurbished, thanks to several area businesses and a local VoAg department working toward a common goal.

She is ready for the highways, showing off a prominent "Real Seal," amid signage that reminds consumers to love and drink milk.

Summertime finds the little red barn with only a few days to spend at home – Bill Blough's place near Boswell. She's too busy fulfilling her invitations from county fair associations and other events, some ag-related, some not.

Once parked, the wooden awning or roof will be propped up and the countertop let down to reveal a serving window for ice cream, soft freeze, milkshakes, flavored and white milk.

Its ice cream machine has 220 voltage while 110 is sufficient operating power for two freezers and a six-foot cooler.

Usually, the barn is connected to an on-site electrical source, however, if none is available its own hidden generator is used.

"It was built to promote dairy," Bill Blough said. "We needed something the whole family could walk up to and get a drink."

As the whole idea for its design began taking shape, Robert J. Blough, Bill's uncle, donated the frame of a house trailer.

Then Don's Custom Barnes of Somerset put a little red barn on the frame.

Rich Nero of Boswell took charge of wiring its properly.

"Mr. Neri donated a lot of time because he understood farming," Bill Blough, recalled.

Then at the Friedens farm of Mike Stutzman the men paneled the unit.

There was the younger Blough, and Mike Stutzman, his dad Ralph Stutzman, Gary Lynch, Lowell Friedline of Boswell, Ed Thomas of Jerome and several other farmers helping out.

"Once we decided it was driven by other forces," said Lowell Friedline, the Somerset board president and secretary of Allied's central board.

The state Department of Health, provided regulations for health and food safety, and specifications for equipment that Allied would install. Having met these, the unit passed inspection and soon thirsty patrons were coming around for refreshments.

Lowell Friedline declares that ice cold milk will outdo any cola. He only wishes more kids and adults knew it.

The state Department of Transportation, likewise, pronounced the vehicle road-worthy and legal. Lights had been installed and Pennsylvania license plates were attached. Since then, it regularly has undergone a state inspection.

For the most part, she's a good performer, except for breaking an axle not too long ago. And of course, her caretakers are watchful of tread wear on the tires.

Lincoln Supply and Equipment and Somerset Welding and Steel saw to it that the barn's back porch was recently replaced.

Eight seniors in the Berlin-Brothersvalley VoAg department, together amassed 200 hours refurbishing the barn after it was delivered last April to their school.

Jason VanGilder, a student, said during the disassembling process, the team removed the old siding, the roof, window and signs.

"We took it down to the studding," he said.

Doyle Paul, their adviser, said his students basically worked on their own.

"They were in charge but I gave them encouragement," he said.

The project involved painting, welding, oxyacetylene cutting, shingling the roofs, router signs, drilling, nailing, wood cutting, sanding, grinding, lettering, trimming, disassembling and reassembling.

As far as materials, they worked with shingles, barn paint, gloss paint, lacquer thinner, galvanized nails, T1-11 board, paint thinner, edger, hinges, and latches, blue paint ridge vent, end plugs, furring strips, door latch, 2x4s treated, and 1-inch by 10-inch face boards, white aluminum drop edge, and two 55-gallon drums that form the silo, painted blue and attached near the hitch.

"I thought the class was very motivated," Paul said.

The other students were Justin VanGilder, Rebecca Fisher, Ryan Coleman, Bryan Engle, Justin Lorson, Justi. Hillegass, and Jack Koontz.

Whether at Ag-Progress Days, county fairs, nursing homes, festivals or shopping malls, the little red barn causes a happy stir wherever it goes.

"One thing that has always been amusing to me are the people who see the barn in one location and tell me they saw another barn just like it in another location," remarked Dorothy Naugle, dairy marketing specialist for the Allied Milk Producer's Cooperative, Inc.

"They don't realize it is the same barn and that it travels so far."

On June 27 it is to appear at Somerset County Day at the Farm. Doug and Debra Hillegass are hosting the event, located along Route 31 near Roxbury, beyond Berlin.

A.J. Walker, reportedly has engaged it for an open house set for July 22 and 23 in Somerset. Bill Blough is already excited about the affair and claims it's the place to go for a great time.

Blough is a past president of both the county and central Allied boards. His friends credit Blough for the idea of a mobile dairy unit. On July 14, 1983 it became a reality.

He remembers how he booked it, billed it, delivered and cleaned it in the early days.

"It's made a name for itself. I think it has been a very worthwhile thing," added Blough.

To book the barn now, Call Dorothy Naugle at Allied's telephone number: 814-798-5322.

As far as charges, Blough notes that rental is by the day. A fee per mile to deliver the barn is also charged.

Dean Zolla from Friedens usually is the delivery man.

If the barn happens to be sitting in Blough's yard, he says, humorously, it doubles as a guidepost for the neighbors.

The Allied Milk Producer's Cooperative, Inc., was organized in 1950. In the promotion and advertising of products for the local dairymen in nine southwestern Pennsylvania counties, it is a modern pioneer.

More than an emphasis on good taste and nutrition is needed for consumers to be motivated to buy and use dairy products. Allied believes somehow, a demand must be created through strategic promotion activities.

Allied's central board members in addition to Friedline, include Janice Itle, Cambria County; Richard Kaufman, Jr., Somerset County; Dave Myers, Cambria County; Jim Scott, Indiana County; Fred Shankle, Bedford County; and Naugle.

A Time to Be Messy, A Time to Be Clean

I love family get-togethers when my sister and I do "projects" with the toddlers in our family. I take great pride in the fact that my niece boldly announces, "When Aunt Becca comes, we always get very messy."

Messiness if an important part of childhood, and creative play can be messy. But it is also important that children learn early in life to take personal hygiene seriously.

It's easy to become lazy about hand washing and bathing, but we may be paying a price for that laziness in prescription co-pays. Child care facilities are champs at teaching children routines in these areas. And parents can learn from them.

Regular, effective hand washing is probably the most important thing you can teach your child in an effort to help prevent colds and other infections. Children (and adults) should wash their hands before and after meals, after every potty break, and when coming in from play or after petting an animal. It is also important to wash hands before and after food preparation.

Toddlers love to "help" with tasks in the kitchen. I encourage that. They can tear up lettuce for a salad, dump the contents of cans in pots or bowls, mix pancake batter, and spread peanut butter on bread. But if they are going to be involved with food, insist on washing their hands before they start.

Antibacterial products are not necessary to get clean hands. Health experts recommend 20 seconds of vigorous scrubbing with soap, under warm running water. To help toddlers, sing a song together. "We have to rub the whole time we sing the ABCs." Or do a chant like "Rub tops and bottoms, in-betweens, tops, and bottoms, in-betweens."

Providing a stool that allows the toddler to stand independently at the sink will encourage them to stay the required time. (Of course, if your toddler is anything like mine, the challenge is not to get them to stay but rather to get them to turn the water off and leave once the scrubbing is done.)

One caution for parents— it is best if children use warm water when washing hands. But we need to be extra careful about scalds. One way to prevent scalds is to turn down the setting on your hot water heater to a maximum of 120° F. This will also lower your heating bill.

It's important for grown-ups to remember that toddlers like to do things "by myself!" Foot stools make this possible for hand washing. During bath time, be sure to give them a sponge or washcloth to scrub their own bodies. Then suggest that you'll just do the "touch ups" at the end, (even if the touch ups are really the significant cleaning time).

One other hygiene trick that I learned from a child care provider that I've chosen to use with my own family is related to sneezing and coughing. How many of us have repeatedly commanded our children to cover their mouths with their hands when they cough or sneeze? This sounds like a great idea to keep germs from spraying into a neighbor's air space; however, those germs are then plastered on little hands that touch everything.

One child care provider shared that they direct a child to cough into his or her shoulder or elbow. This keeps the germs from being broadcast widely. Only a contortionist uses his elbows or shoulders to pick up toys and give hugs.

As with everything else I do, I'm reminded that my daughter is watching me and learning from what I do. Sometimes, I'm brought up short when she announces, "Mommy, you forgot to wash your hands." For that I'm grateful. I figure getting those positive habits in place at an early age will help to solidify them for a lifetime.

And for children that lifetime should include lots of very messy times followed by the equally important clean up time.

Make It Happen! FFA

On March 30, the Lebanon County speaking contests were held in the Cedar Crest Ag Science classroom. FFA members from Cedar Crest participated in parliamentary procedure, creed speaking, FFA prepared speaking, conservation speaking and FFA junior prepared speaking.

Speaking contests require the participants to write a speech on an agricultural-related topic. It must be of appropriate length: 6-8 minutes for senior prepared and conservation, and 3-5 minutes for junior prepared. The speaking contestants must answer up to five minutes of questions from the judges.

The parliamentary procedure teams must put on a 20-minute mock meeting demonstrating many parliamentary abilities. The creed contestants must recite the FFA creed and answer judges' questions about the creed.

Judges for parliamentary procedure were Andy Martin and Darrell Heagy. Prepared speaking judges were Gerald Strickler and Dominic Centonze. The judges for the creed contest were Lowell Morton, Art Swinehart, and Mike Batz.

Parliamentary procedure team members included Jason Balsbaugh, Amanda Martin, Chet Brubaker, Erin Templin, Beth Kreider, Jeremy Balsbaugh, Jared Zimmerman, Sarah Krall, Amanda Heffelfinger, B.J. Atkins, Hannah Bomgardner, and Joel Krall. The team placed first in the county. The creed speaking contest is for first-year members. From Cedar Crest, Jeremy Balsbaugh placed second in the county and Joel Krall won third place. In the FFA prepared speaking, Amanda Martin was first in the county and Jason Balsbaugh won second place. In conservation speaking, Erin Templin was second in the county. In FFA junior prepared, Beth Kreider was first in the county and Kris Keller was second.

YOGURT

Heat one gallon milk with ½ cup sugar to 190 degrees. While heating, soak 2½ tablespoons unflavored gelatin in ½ cup cold water. Add to milk when it reaches 190 degrees. Cool to 125-130 degrees. Add:

2 tablespoons vanilla
4 tablespoons plain yogurt
1 cup sugar

Beat until smooth. Cover and put in oven with light on for 9-11 hours. Add ½ tablespoon per quart of your favorite Jell-O when you take it out of the oven and beat. Or, when cool, add any pie filling.

This is a healthy and very simple recipe. Children love it and it's inexpensive.

My husband and I live on a dairy farm. We milk 56 cows. Our family is young, but seemingly, they all take an interest on the farm. It makes them feel very important if they can help.

We have two sons, Brian and Benjamin. Three weeks ago we were blessed with our first daughter, Regina. Now the children outnumber the parents. It makes life busy but very interesting.

½ cup butter
2 eggs, separated
½ pint whipping cream
#2 can crushed pineapple, drained
1 pound vanilla wafers ground or crushed

Line two bread pans with waxed paper.

Let set in refrigerator overnight before serving.

This is quite a rich dessert but elegant for a party. We usually have it for Easter. My husband and I live on a small dairy farm in Westminster. We have a cream separator and make cream when we have too much milk. I have always loved butter!

We live on Ruth Shriver Road, but it is not named after me, but after my husband's mother. Around here, a lot of roads are named for people who lived there. My husband Charles uses horses for part of his farming operation. We have been dairy farming for 40 years. Charles does not want to retire, as he has done nothing else and loves the cows and farm.

STRIPE-IT-RICH-CAKE

1 package yellow cake mix
2 small packages instant pudding (chocolate or butterscotch)
1 cup confectioner's sugar
4 cups cold milk

Prepare cake mix and put into 13x9-inch pan. Bake. Remove from oven and poke holes through cake using a round handle. Combine pudding and sugar, stir in milk. Beat at low speed for one minute. Quickly pour half of the thin pudding evenly over warm cake and into the holes.

Allow remaining pudding to thicken then spoon over cake top, swirling to frost cake. Chill at least one hour before serving. Store in refrigerator.

This is an easy recipe but oh—so good! We live on a farm in Mifflin County. We have four children, Katie, 11; Pam, 9; Neil and Nathan, 6. We sold our cows in January and are concentrating on the 350 veal calves we raise. We sure miss going to that tank for fresh milk. We sure are thankful to dairy farmers and all the long hours they put in.

SAUSAGE CHOWDER

1 pint corn
8-ounces cream cheese
1½ cups milk
½ pound sausage, any kind, cooked, crumbled or sliced
Salt and pepper to taste

Cover potatoes and onions with water. Add 1 teaspoon salt. Cook until tender. Do not drain. Add remaining ingredients and simmer (do not boil) until cream cheese is blended in.

Hello, from Pamper Hill Dairy Farm. My husband, Arlin, and I have five children: Jay, 18; Karla and Krystal, 16; Keith and Kevin, 14.

Arlin jokingly named the place Pamper Hill after family and friends gave a Pamper shower when we learned we were having a second set of twins. The two sets of twins are 15 months apart.

The name stuck.

Now that all of our children are teen-agers, we milk 80 cows, they are a tremendous help to us on the farm.

Lila Maust
Accident, MD

Since their parents sold their cows, Katie, Adam, Neil, and Nathan miss being able to get fresh milk from the milk tank. They are the children of Kaye Martin and her husband, McVeytown.

Amanda Martin, Lebanon County Dairy Princess, enjoys showing dairy cattle.

Charles Shriver uses horses for part of his farming operation. His wife Ruth is at work in the stauchion barn.

ORANGY MILK PUNCH

1 quart vanilla ice cream
2 pints orange sherbet
16-ounces carbonated lemon-lime beverage
1 quart milk

Combine softened ice cream and sherbet and lemon-lime beverage; chill. Before serving, gradually add milk; beat until mixture is smooth. Serve in punch bowl. Garnish with orange slices if desired.

I am the Lebanon County Dairy Princess. I will be a senior at Cedar Crest High School this fall. I am also studying horticulture at the Lebanon County Career and Technology Center.

I live on Promise-Lane Dairy Farm with my parents, Eugene and Kathleen Martin, and brother Andy. I also have a sister Allison.

We milk 80 Holsteins and own 163 acres.

I am very involved in FFA, participating in parliamentary procedure, dairy judging, public speaking, etc. I also play field hockey.

I enjoy working with and showing dairy cattle, line dancing, and horseback riding.

Please support dairy farmers this June Dairy Month and drink milk!

SWEETHEART SALAD

½ cup sugar
1½ tablespoons plain gelatin
¼ cup cold water
6 ounces cream cheese
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons cherry juice
1 cup whipping cream
12 maraschino cherries

Dissolve gelatin in cold water. In a saucepan, bring pineapples and sugar to a boiling point. Then add gelatin. Stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add lemon and cherry juice. Cool.

Mash cream cheese and add chopped cherries. Combine with pineapple mixture, adding a small amount at a time. Chill until slightly thickened. Whip cream and blend with salad mixture. Put it in a mold and chill.

My husband and I have lived on a dairy farm the past nine months, and we wouldn't trade it off for any other job.

We have 36 cows plus young stock and farm about 70 acres.

Life sure doesn't get boring on a farm. . . .

Dads Help Tame the "Tube"

According to the National Institute on Media and the Family, children spend more time watching television than any other activity except sleeping. This means television can become a powerful tool in a child's life. And dads play an important role in determining whether that tool results in positive or negative behaviors in the child.

Tim, a potato grower and father of three girls ages 18 months to 6 years, has seen that. "They're learning from television. They're learning good stuff, but they're also learning bad stuff. Sometimes after I hear them say something they've heard on television I have to tell them, 'Those words are not appropriate.'"

Scott, a father of two young boys agrees. He says parental monitoring is crucial. "Right now we have 100 percent control of what they watch." He and his wife decided to keep the television elevated, so the kids couldn't reach the power switch. They review the TV guide descriptions of shows. And sometimes when the content turns sour in the middle of a show, he simply announces, "Let's go make some popcorn!" to keep the children from seeing content that concerns him.

Several dads mentioned that they use videos as a substitute for television. One urged parents to check out the free children's videos available at the public library as an alternative to commercial broadcasts.

As children grow, rules naturally change. Steve, the father of three teenagers, does not have rules for television viewing these days. He and his wife have declare one or two late night shows "off limits," but have few other controls in place. But they used to. During the elementary school years, he recalls they allowed the television only to be watched on weekends during the school year. This encouraged his children to all become avid readers.

Researchers know that when television displaces other more enriching activities, children's development suffers. This is especially true when the shows they are viewing are cartoon or entertainment-type shows rather than carefully constructed, age-appropriate educational shows. That's why Tim said, "Sometimes we just have to chase them out of the house and say, "Go play outside," if the television has been on too much that day."

Children between the ages of three and five are at a critical stage for language and literacy development. In 1985 Drs. Searls and Ward documented that children who watched more than three hours of television a day had the poorest reading skills among their peers. So limiting the time spent in front of the television is important to later school and job performance.

What other issues related to television concerned these dads? The father of the teens was extremely concerned about how blatant the sexual messages were on shows—not just a few shows but seemingly everything his children wanted to watch. Scott felt strongly that more government regulations were not the solution, "It's got to be the parent's responsibility to turn off the television. I don't want the government doing what I should be doing as a parent. The industry is only making what sells, and if parents started turning the violent stuff off, the industry would start to change."

Although there are many concerns, there are also some shared fun times. Scott likes to watch Nova and Krat's Kreatures with his son. Steve enjoys sharing Seinfeld reruns with his kids. And Tim recalls a cute moment, while working on his tractor, his girls found his tape measure and started reenacting a scene from Mary Poppins declaring to one another, 'Really stubborn and suspicious.' "They even measured me!"

The dads did admit that if they weren't careful, television could become a babysitter or the trick to getting kids to fall asleep at nap time. The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends that children watch no more than two hours of television a day. The National Institute on Media and the Family adds that televisions should be kept out of kids' bedrooms and should be turned off during meal times.

THREE CHEESE MOLD

1½ teaspoon gelatin
¼ cup cool water
2 tablespoons grated onion
¼ cup sour cream
½ cup blue cheese
½ cup shredded cheddar
½ cup cottage cheese
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon powdered garlic, not garlic salt

Sprinkle gelatin over cool water. Allow particles to soften and absorb water for five minutes. In food processor, mix three cheeses until blended. Add and process to combine grated onion, sour cream, Worcestershire sauce, garlic, and gelatin. Line a round, two-cup mold (I use a glass bowl) with clear plastic wrap. Spray wrap lightly with cooking spray. Pack in cheese mixture and chill overnight. Unmold by inverting bowl and removing plastic wrap. Sprinkle with chopped parsley. Serve with crudites: zucchini strips, carrot sticks, fresh mushrooms, cherry tomatoes, broccoli, and cauliflower floretts (all grown in New Jersey, of course).

Good things about this recipe:

- Cheese mold may be prepared several days ahead if stored in a plastic bag in mold.
- Vegetables may be prepped in morning or purchased already prepared from market.
- The platter is easy to assemble: put cheese mold in center (rounded side up) and surround with crudites, garnish edges of plate with parsley sprigs and radichio tuckede under edge of crudites.

Can be assembled fast at last minute and looks like you've really worked hard on this dressy dish.

Prep time: cheese mold is 15-20 minutes. Crudites—prep veggies 30 minutes; purchased crudites 5 minutes to arrange on plate.

Serves 6-10.

I love Lancaster Farming. I'm a cook, mostly from scratch. I collect antique cookbooks and old kitchen tools and use them all. I garden and cook out of the garden all summer. Also raise fancy daylilies (5,000 plus plants) and exotic hostas.

SUN Princess Reigns In Four Counties

BEAVERTOWN (Snyder Co.) — Jennifer McWilliams, daughter of Lester and Barb McWilliams from Beavertown, was crowned the 1999 SUN Area Dairy Princess by outgoing dairy princess Lisa Heimbach. Leslie Kenamond, daughter of John and Nancy Kenamond of Mifflinburg, was named first alternate princess. Sandy Opdyke, daughter of Charles and Ann Opdyke of McClure, was elected second alternate princess.

The SUN Area Dairy Princess Pageant was held Saturday evening June 12 at the Susquehanna Valley Mall in Selinsgrove. "SUN" Areas include Snyder, Union, Northumberland and Moutour counties. The Boscov store in the Susquehanna Valley Mall sponsored Ag Dairy Days with the help of the SUN Area Dairy Princess Promotion Committee and local businesses.

The 25th Anniversary Dairy Princess Pageant began with Dawn Marie of Big Country Radio serving as the master of ceremonies. This year the SUN Area Dairy Princess promotion committee celebrated 25 strong years of promoting the dairy industry. They honored all the past princesses at the pageant.

This year 11 dairy maids, Christina Brosious, Sarah Erdley, Brittany Fry, Selena Hollenbach, Tina Hollenbach, Melissa McWilliams, Brittany Rice, Tara Rice, Amanda Shaffer, Laci Shirey, and Corinda Varner participated. They nine dairy miss participants are: Amanda Hauck, Raquel Hauck, Dawn Heimbach, Valerie Hoover, Jessica Kessler, Tanya Rice, Jennifer Waite, Makenzie Walters, and Emily Weller. The 1998 Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess Megan Myers from Franklin County joined in Saturday evening's event.

All of the young ladies participated in a fashion review, with commentary by Jane Hawn, public relations manager at Boscov's. Nathan Sanders provided musical entertainment. Harold Holt, retired extension agent, presented this year's Dairy of Distinction Award to Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Shaffer of Port Treverton.

The 25th annual Ag Dairy Days was filled with fun and excitement for all ages. On Thursday, June 10, a ceremony was held to honor local women and men over the age of 65 who have been active in agriculture over the years. Country Legend provided musical entertainment and Eager-Beaver 4-H Club sold milkshakes.

Friday evening, June 11 a seven-foot-tall giant ice cream sundae was built in the Boscov's Court. Turkey Hill Dairies of Conestoga, furnished 138 gallons of premium vanilla ice cream, 10 gallons of chocolate sauce, 25 pounds of pecans, and 5 gallons of strawberries. For months, Jason Sauder, Manheim, tried to think of an original way to propose to Jess Young. What better way, he decided, then to use "John Deere green" to paint the proposal and string the banner across one of the family's red barns. Last week, he nervously waited on the porch while Jess drove from her parents' (John and Terry Young's) Mastersonville farm to meet him. As Jess turned into the Sauder farm, she read the sign: "Jess, Will You Marry Me?" Jess described her reaction as "pure shock." She continued to drive very slowly up the long lane much to Jason's chagrin. But Jess had a reason. "I couldn't see," the teary-eyed 19-year-old explained as Jason slipped the diamond on her finger. The couple are planning a June 10, 2000 wedding on the Sauders' Century Farm. After the wedding, the newlyweds plan to move in one part of the large farmhouse so that Jason can continue crop and hog farming with parents Glen and Shirley Sauder and operate the family's custom combining business. Photo by Lou Ann Good.

Guidelines Available For Children's Ag Tasks

MARSHFIELD, Wis. — Parents wanting a resource to help match children's abilities with agricultural job requirements should know that North American Guidelines for Children's Agricultural Tasks (NAGCAT) are available.

Announcement about the guidelines and their availability was made recently during a celebration in conjunction with the annual conference of the National Institute for Farm Safety in Ocean City, Maryland. Speaking at that celebration was Orion Samuelson, WGN Radio's national farm radio broadcaster; and Andy Armbruster, an officer for the National FFA.

Select details about the guidelines are available at Internet site www.nagcat.org; the professional resource manual/parent resources themselves are available from Gempler's, a Belleville, Wisconsin, safety supply company, toll free at 800-382-8473 or at its web site www.gemplers.com; and farm safety specialists may be aware of distributors providing free parent resources.

"We hope these guidelines will help promote a strong work ethic for young people by giving them safe and appropriate opportunities for work experiences under adult supervision," said Barbara Lee, Ph.D., director, National Children's Center for Rural and Agricultural Health and Safety, a program of Marshfield Clinic, Marshfield, Wisconsin, and a site of the Children's Safety Network.

Lee is principal investigator for a team that developed guidelines at the request of farm parents who wanted guidance in assigning appropriate tasks to children. Guidelines were developed through a consensus development process involving over 150 individuals from the United States, Canada and Mexico including farm parents, teen workers, agricultural safety specialists and child development specialists. "We wanted as many farmers and ranchers as possible to participate in this process," said Barbara Marlenga, Ph.D., project manager/associate scientist, National Children's Center. "We needed to know what would be helpful and what information they need to make decisions about jobs their children do."

Matching jobs to children's development is important. Annually, more than 100 children are killed and 100,000 seriously injured because of incidents involving agricultural machinery, livestock, falls or other events. Injuries may occur because parents and children mistake physical size and age for ability, overestimate developmental capabilities, or underestimate levels of hazard and risk.

The guidelines cover 62 agricultural jobs focusing on the most common farm activities children do. Categories are animal care; manual labor; haying operations; implement operations; specialty production; tractor fundamentals, and general activities.

Guidelines are based on child development principles, rather than a child's age. "Kids develop at their own pace, are influenced by their environment and have different things going on at home," Marlenga said. "If we said a 10-year-old could do a certain job, we might put half of them at risk."

Guidelines, developed with different versions for parents and professionals, are recommendations not mandates. "Like recommendations on children's toys and games, the guidelines serve as a point of reference which require further assessment and decision-making by adults," Lee said.

The National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, Canadian Coalition for Agricultural Safety and Rural Health, and federal Maternal and Child Health Bureau funded this project.

Thanks to John Bosak, Harrisburg, who writes in regards to Karnow's decision to remove tree stumps with saltpeter here is some facts to know: Stump holes are filled and replenished with a water and saltpeter solution to permeate the stump and down to the root itself. This, in itself, does not remove the roots. It's the next step that does the job and is often omitted due to misunderstanding of the process. A fire is built over the stump to ignite the wood, which then burns like a punk, down to the roots, depending on the depth of penetration of the solution. This poses some danger of fire during a dry season and caution is advised.

Bosak also writes that saltpeter, KN03 is used as a meat preservative, fertilizer explosive, etc. It can be purchased in chemical supply houses and possibly at Agway stores for about $17.50 for five pounds.

National Sheep Association Seeks Nominations

DENVER, Colo. — Members of the Sheep Industry Transition Team meet recently in Denver and finalized the structure for the National Sheep Association and the procedure to select the first board of directors.

An interim board of directors will be selected by the organizations represented on the Transition Team. Three at-large directors will also be selected from nominations made by any state or national organization or by any individual wanting to nominate themselves.

The Transition Team will select the at-large directors from the nominations submitted. Nominations should be sent to the National Sheep Association office by July 15 along with a short paragraph detailing the qualifications of the nominee.

The Interim Board will serve from Aug. 1, 1999 until Dec. 1, 1999. Founding memberships will be solicited between now and Aug. 1 with founding members having voting rights according to the forums in which they choose to belong. Regular memberships will be available after Aug. 1, 1999. Members will be asked to nominate individuals to serve on the first board of directors from their forums by Oct. 1, 1999 with elections to be held by mail in November 1999. The first board will be seated on Dec. 1, 1999.

The board structure will be as follows: two directors representing range flock producers, two directors representing farm flock producers, two directors representing seedstock producers, and two directors representing lamb feeders in the pre-harvest segments. There will also be two directors representing post-harvest lamb segments of packers and processors and two directors representing post-harvest wool segments of textile manufacturers and wool marketing groups. Three at-large directors and one ex-officio state association representative will also be named to the interim board.

"The Transition Team felt that by naming an Interim Board for the National Sheep Association, leadership would be provided in the start-up phase of the organization while giving potential members the opportunity to join and elect the people that they want to lead the industry forward," said Mike Caskey, Pipestone, Minn., sheep producer and chairman of the Transition Team. "This new organization is designed to be member-guided, so the team felt it was essential that the membership elect the first board of directors."

As the only industrywide organization, the National Sheep Association allows all segments of the industry to come together — producers, feeders, lamb packers and processors, wool buyers, warehouses and textile manufacturers, state and breed associations, and others in the industry. The unique organizational structure provides for the establishment of forums allocated to the different segments of the industry. Each forum can interact on issues and concerns unique to their side of the business and work cooperatively with other segments on matters of importance to the industry as a whole.

"This is a significant change from the current federation of states that the national organization has utilized for many years," said Ron Guenther, Powell, Ohio, seedstock producer. "It allows grass roots involvement on a national level and input into areas of specific concern to each segment, which makes it very functional." NSA fosters an industrywide vision and cooperative approach to problem solving, building industry coalitions and developing business opportunities.

Some of the fundamentals of the new organization plan revolve around the ability of the National Sheep Association to serve as a catalyst to strengthen and advance the sheep industry. It will build an industrywide plan for future growth and profitability by allowing participants to address opportunities and challenges, develop creative solutions, and take actions necessary to make changes in the market system by promoting innovation and positioning the industry as consumer responsive.

"One of the exciting aspects of the new National Sheep Association structure is the creation of a Business Development Council," noted Tom Boyer, Coalville, Utah sheep producer and chairman of the implementation Task Force that helped define the concept and function of the BDC. "The BDC is an important component of the National Sheep Association's efforts to provide ways for existing organizations and individuals to work together to develop and implement an industrywide strategic plan that positions the industry for growth and profitability. We envision the BDC to be the R & D dynamo which will stimulate the industry and help turn it around."

The mission of the BDC will be to enable new and existing ventures to achieve success by facilitating the creation of solutions to take advantage of new market opportunities and alliances.

Founding memberships are available from now until Aug. 1, 1999 with four levels of participation as follows: platinum founder; minimum contribution of $2,000; gold founder, $1,000 to $1,999; silver founder, $500 to $999; and bronze founder, $100 to $499. Funds will be used to provide support services, meetings, and communications to the potential membership in establishment of the National Sheep Association.

For a copy of the detailed plan on the new National Sheep Association and founding membership information, contact the National Sheep Association, 950 S. Cherry St., Suite 508, Denver, CO 80246 or call (303) 758-3513 or visit the website at www.nationalsheep.org.

Store Has Ground Breaking

OXFORD (Chester Co.) — A new concept in retailing that has its roots in the old-fashioned country stores of a hundred years ago is coming soon to this area.

The new store will feature an extensive line of feed and supplies for horses and pets, lumber and hardware, as well as tools for the home owner or contractor. It will also provide lawn and garden products, seeds, fencing and much more. The new store is designed to serve the growing number of customers from the suburbs and surrounding southern Chester County area who enjoy a country lifestyle on a few acres of their own.

"Called "America's Country Store," the name and distinctive barn-like facade of the store, are registered trademarks and are designed to capture the ambience and spirit of the feed and general merchandise of the stores of the late 1800s. The new store presents itself as a sharp contrast to today's sprawling "big box" retail operations. Groundbreaking ceremonies were slated for June 24 at 6 p.m.

The America's Country Store, Oxford Feed and Lumber, will have 5,200 square feet of retail space and a covered drive-thru for loading. It will be located at The Grain and Hay on Railroad Avenue in Oxford, and will be owned and managed by the Drennen family of Oxford.

The Drennen's have operated country stores dating back five generations when they operated the Fairmount Country Store near Lancaster in the mid 1800s. The lumber and feed dealer is the second oldest Purina dealership in the United States.

Their major businesses are horse and pet feed supplies, lumber and building materials as well as home-heating oil and farm fuels.

New Holland Completes China Tractor Sale

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — New Holland N.V. recently announced the delivery of 363 agricultural tractors to the China National Construction and Agricultural Machinery Import and Export Corporation (CAMC).

The sale was financed through a loan from the Overseas Economic Cooperation Funds of Japan. All the units are 16 horsepower Series M tractors assembled in the United Kingdom at New Holland's Basildon facility. The deal also includes extensive spare parts support, technical assistance, training, and the provision of fully-equipped mobile service workshops.

The tractors are intended for use in the Sanjiang Plain Agricultural Development Project in Heilongjiang Province. The majority of the units will be used within the Heilongjiang Beidahuang State Farm Group, New Holland's partner in the Harbin New Holland Beidahuang Tractors Ltd. joint venture.

The 363 built-up units are of the same model that will be built by the joint venture, and were delivered in time for use in spring planting. Local service workshops have been established and training of service personnel and operators is on schedule. Production by the joint venture is expected to begin later in the second half of the year.

AgChoice Farm Credit Issues Patronage Checks

MECHANICSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — In April, 8,766 member-borrowers of *Ag*Choice Farm Credit received patronage refund checks totaling more than $7.2 million from the 1998 earnings of their Farm Credit cooperatives, announced Allyn Lamb, president.

*Ag*Choice Farm Credit borrowers received, on average, a rebate of 16.2 percent of the interest Farm Credit earned on their loans in 1998. More than 46 percent, or $3.4 million, of the refund was paid in cash. The balance was placed in allocated surplus in the names of individual member-borrowers. The borrowers of the former York and Northeastern Farm Credits received 30 percent of their refund in cash, and borrowers of the former PennWest Farm Credit received 100 percent in cash in accordance with the consolidation agreement.

"The three associations that formed *Ag*Choice Farm Credit on January 1, 1999, all had successful years in 1998, and we are pleased to be able to share our success with our borrowers, to 'put our profits in their pockets'," said Don Cotner, chairman of the *Ag*Choice Farm Credit board and farmer from Danville. "This is the 10th, ninth, and first year that York Northeastern, and PennWest, respectively, have paid a patronage refund. In addition, York and Northeastern have returned the allocated surplus we issued on a five- to six-year cycle."

Since 1990, the predecessors of *Ag*Choice Farm Credit have distributed a total of $37 million to their member-borrowers in patronage refunds, 11.7 million of which has already been returned to the cooperative's user-owners.

Hand Control Option For Skid-Steer Loaders Offers Precise, Comfortable Control

FARGO, N.D. — Melroe Ingersoll-Rand introduced new Bobcat® Advanced Hand Controls, a factory-installed option that allows operators ergonomic hand-control of skid-steer loader lift arm and attachment tilt hydraulics. The option is available for Bobcat 750s, 763, 773, 863, 873 and 963 skid-steer loaders.

Bobcat Advanced Hand Controls provides an alternative to traditional Bobcat hydraulic foot pedal controls with the control and comfort of hydraulic hand controls. Compared to traditional mechanical hand controls, the new controls enable immediate, precise and proportional response, with minimal operator effort.

Bobcat Advanced Hand Controls are easily operated by handles mounted on the steering levers located on either side of the operator's seat. The left handle controls the lift arm functions, while the right handle controls the tilt function for Bobcat attachments. The handles tilt 15 degrees right and left from the neutral position to ensure easy operation and minimize operator fatigue. For ergonomic comfort, operators can choose between two positions to grasp the handles — an upper position and a lower position, in which the operator's hand and wrist are supported by the armrest. Auxiliary hydraulics are controlled with push buttons built in the steering lever handles.

Rather than simply refining existing technology, Melroe devoted four years to developing an entirely new hand control system for Bobcat skid-steer loaders that combines electronic activation and ergonomic control with proven technology. This development program called for million-cycle testing of all components to prove their durability, reliability and resistance to vibrations. These double-sealed components allow protection against extreme temperature and humidity conditions, advancements that mean increased reliability and reduced maintenance for users.

Self-Propelled Windrowers Bring Advanced Features To Already Proven Designs

ATLANTA, Ga. — With the introduction of the Model 8450 self-propelled windrower last year, Hesston took the first step into the next generation.

Today Hesston has taken a giant leap with the release of the Model 8250 self-propelled windrower and the Model 8550 self-propelled disc windrower. Each model is designed with improved features, comforts, and added performance.

The success of the Model 8450 laid the foundation for additional models in 1999.

"Both of these models are based on the styling and technology that went into the model 8450," said Ron Hess, general marketing manager of Hesston products. These features include deep channel mainframes that have the strength to carry each machine through the roughest terrain. The highly acclaimed, new generation cabs are wider, quieter and built with operator comfort and visibility in mind.

Additional improvements to the new windrowers include the increase of horsepower and horsepower options. The 8250 will come in two versions, the 8250 and 8250S. The 8250 will feature a 239-cubic-inch Cummins diesel that generates 80 hp at 2,500 rpm. And, for those who need additional horsepower for higher elevations or rougher soil conditions, the 8250S boasts a turbocharged Cummins engine which puts up to 110 hp at the operator's fingertips. The model 8550 will feature a 359-cubic-inch (5.9 liter), 152 hp Cummins turbocharged diesel engine.

With a host of tractor enhancements came the need for improved header options for the new windrowers. This was accomplished by providing the 8250 and 8250S with 12-, 14- or 16-foot header options, offering both single and dual sickle configurations. The new 8010 header features a 1,690 strokes-per-minute single sickle in widths of 12 and 14 feet.

"We will also be offering a new 8020 header, which comes in 14- and 16-foot widths," said Hess. "However, this header features a double sickle that operates at a speed of 1,840 strokes-per-minute for even faster cutting."

Finally, the new headers feature the "new look" polyethylene end shields that increase reliability and improve serviceability. The advantages of polyethylene can also be found in the windrow forming shields, where the non-metallic surface resists crop buildup and enhances the formation of windrows.

Substantial improvements occurred in the design and production of the new disc header on the Model 8550. Engineers began with the elimination of three 90-degree gearboxes from the drive system for a simpler, more reliable design. Additional improvements include a new "helper" roll, designed to help lift the crop material into the conditioner rolls and 2 1/2 modified cages on the outside discs that move the crop to the center of the header to improve feeding action.

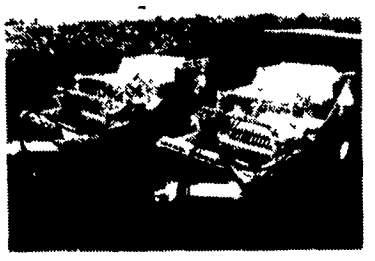
Pickers Stalk Rocky Fields

PELLA, Iowa — Two new heavy-duty hydraulically powered rock pickers were recently introduced by Vermeer Manufacturing.

Both models, the Vermeer® RP-6084 Rock Picker and the higher-capacity RP-78, include a unique bogie wheel design that sweeps up potential equipment-damaging rocks, leaving the soil in the field.

Both models feature a hydraulic reel drive with a guided reel to improve rock-picking performance. A vertical apron, plus grated bucket design, helps to keep more dirt in the field.

The large 8-inch bogie wheels (with sealed bearings) follow a special track that guides the reel arms parallel to the ground and creates more than a foot of sweeping "lift" action in the front of the apron. This helps reduce the "battering" action that's more prevalent in round reel designs, especially when encountering smaller rock diameters.



Both rock pickers feature a hydraulic reel drive with a guided reel to improve rock-picking performance.

Hydraulic reel drive plus a heavy-duty drive gearbox eliminates downtime caused by worn or broken drive chains, the vibration generated by PTO drives, and the need for slip clutch protection.

The larger RP-78 cleans a 7-foot swath and features a large 3.3 cubic yard bucket capacity that reduces unloading and return times. Its 8-foot dumping height allows it to easily unload into a truck or trailer – or dump rocks onto high rock piles. The RP-6084 has a 5-foot pickup width, a 7-foot dumping height and a bucket capacity of 2.4 cubic yards.

Cedar Crest Participates In Regional Speaking Contests

The annual eastern region speaking contests were conducted at the Millcreek Lutheran Church in Newmanstown April 20.

FFA members from Cedar Crest participated in parliamentary procedure, creed speaking, and FFA junior prepared speaking.

Speaking contests require the participants to write a speech on an agricultural related topic. It must be of appropriate length: 6-8 minutes for senior prepared and conservation, and 3-5 minutes for junior prepared. The speaking contestants must answer up to five minutes of questions from the judges.

The parliamentary procedure teams must put on a 20-minute mock meeting demonstrating many parliamentary abilities. The creed contestants must recite the creed and answer judges' questions about the creed.

Judges for the creed were William Erikson, Arba Henry, and Jim Tatro. Judges for the senior prepared public speaking were Larry Devine, Jill Cebenko and Chris McCahren. Carol Stark, Howard Main and Gretchen Oberst judged the junior prepared speaking contest.

Conservation public speaking judges were Gerald Heistand, Tara Plewa and David Brookmeyer. Judges for parliamentary procedure were J. Ray Bickel, Lowell Morton, and Boyd Robinson.

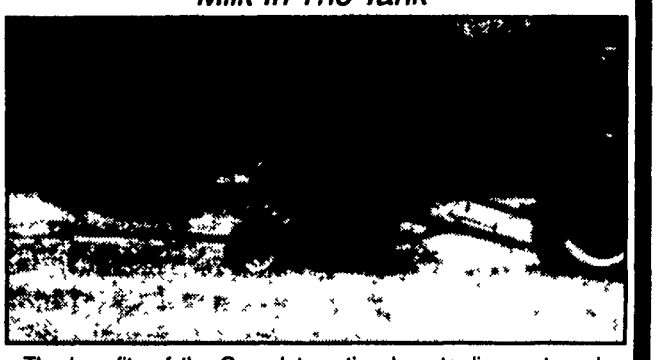
CENTER-LINE DESIGN

Saves More Leaves Which Means More Milk In The Tank



The benefits of the Case International center-line rectangular baler for a smaller operation are many. Narrow transport width. Easy in-field maneuverability. Gentle handling of hay. Uniform bale shape. And, a budget-minded price.

You'll appreciate it with the first bale you make. A wide, low-profile pickup and center-line feeding mean more leaves end up in the bale, not on the ground.

And, if that's not enough, there are a number of options available. A hydraulic pickup lift, flotation tires, hydraulic density control, wagon hitch and a choice of bale chutes or hydraulic bale thrower with electric controls.

Stop in and find out more about the Case International rectangular baler.

 And, big value. You can probably buy a new 8420 for what other used models would cost you.*

And, you get more than an economical baler. We are committed to providing genuine, value-priced Case IH parts, professional and reliable service, and flexible financing.

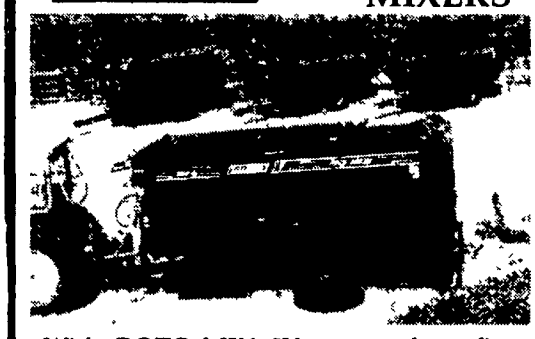
ROTO-MIX IV FEED MIXERS



With ROTO-MIX IV you reduce fines, minimize shrinkage, and eliminate dead spots. The gentle tumbling action mixes fragile flaked and high-moisture ingredients without grinding, resulting in a fluffier, more nutritional ration.

The ROTO-MIX end-to-end... side-to-side mixing system provides the most thorough TMR available, ensuring that your cattle will consume a balanced ration of nutrients in every pound of feed they eat.

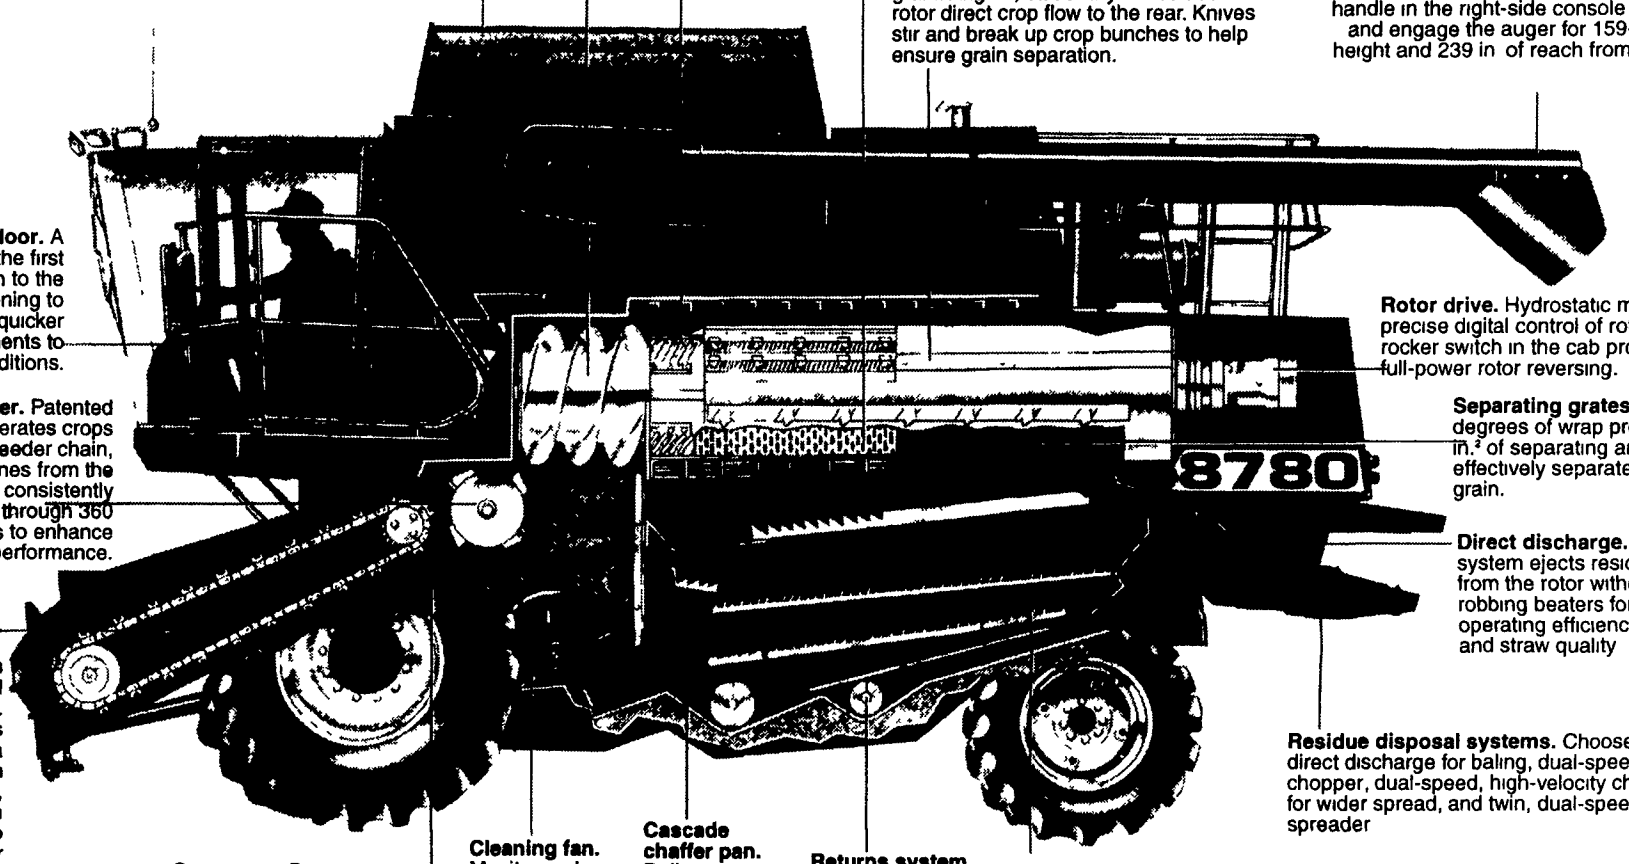
The inside story on the ultimate harvesting machine.

MASSEY FERGUSON 8780



Rotor intake. Hardened auger flighting moves crop from the conical rotor intake area to the threshing area.

Threshing area. Hardened threshing elements smooth crop flow while rasp bars rub crops against the concaves to efficiently dislodge the grain.

Concaves. Seven sections with 140 degrees of wrap provide more than 2,200 in² of area for gentle, yet complete threshing

Grain tank. 230-bu. tank has folding extensions to reduce combine height to just 148 in.

Sweeps, knives, and vanes. Rotor sweeps ensure crop rotation generating centrifugal force to separate remaining grain. Angled, stationary vanes above the rotor direct crop flow to the rear. Knives stir and break up crop bunches to help ensure grain separation.

Turret unloader. Buttons on the multifunction handle in the right-side console let you swing and engage the auger for 159-in discharge height and 239 in of reach from the combine center

Grain sample door. A chute delivers the first bit of grain to the access opening to facilitate quicker adjustments to changing conditions.

Front feed beater. Patented beater accelerates crops leaving the feeder chain, separates stones from the crop flow, and consistently feeds the rotor through 360 degrees to enhance performance.

Feeder system. Wide, 44-in width matches the exceptional rotor capacity. Downtime is reduced with a feed system reverse, operated from within the cab, to quickly clear feed system and header

Rotor drive. Hydrostatic motor provides precise digital control of rotor speeds A rocker switch in the cab provides easy, full-power rotor reversing.

Separating grates. A full 180 degrees of wrap provides 2,241 in.² of separating area to effectively separate remaining grain.

Direct discharge. Patented system ejects residue directly from the rotor without power-robbing beaters for increased operating efficiency, reliability and straw quality

Residue disposal systems. Choose from direct discharge for baling, dual-speed chopper, dual-speed, high-velocity chopper for wider spread, and twin, dual-speed spreader

Stone trap. Protects your combine by capturing and storing rocks for later disposal.

Cleaning fan. Monitor and adjust fan speed from the cab to ensure proper cleaning under changing conditions.

Cascade chaffer pan. Delivers crop from the grain pan to the front of the chaffer to ensure full utilization of the cleaning area.

Returns system Large augers and elevator maintain harvesting rates in high-yelding crops.

Pressurized cleaning shoe. Front 8 in of lower sieve area is nonadjustable airfoil material. Along with a large chaffer and lower sieve, this produces a total cleaning area of 6,815 in²

Our smallest baler comes with BIG features

Our Model 638 Roll-Belt™ round baler is the smallest in the line, but it has the same features and functions as New Holland's larger balers. You can count on dense, uniform 4-ft.-by-4-ft. bales every time.

- Roll-Belt design makes uniform bales weighing up to 750 lbs.
- Requires a minimum 40 PTO hp tractor
- Single-arm twine system reduces wrapping time by applying two strands
- Road/trailing lights are included

See the NEW Model 638 today!

LLAMA HERD
For Sale or trade
We have a wonderful herd of llamas consisting of 20 adult females and one outstanding stud All of our llamas are registered, healthy, and well mannered, THEY DO NOT SPIT!!! Due to an unexpected life change, we must find a new home for our herd. We will sell the entire herd for $25,000 cash or will trade for equal value (vehicles, real estate, or anything which can be liquidated). We will help train and will be available for counseling.
We have been in the llama business for 12 years and have realized a net profit for each of those years. Because llama farming is considering a business by the IRS, all of the costs are tax deductible and the initial investment can be depreciated over five years. Llamas are very easy to keep and very inexpensive to maintain They thrive on medium grade hay(1 bale/week/per llama) Our average cost for hay, feed, medications, and vet services is less than $1800 per year Llama farming is an excellent second business as well as a tax shelter for anyone with 10 or more acres

Cut stall clean-out time by 50% with a Millcreek Compact Spreader.

"The spreading efficiency sure outweighs the price. This is a wonderful machine. I couldn't be more pleased."
EARL SINKS - Brock, Texas

Say "Good-Bye" to back-breaking manure handling and cut stall clean-out time in half. Hook an affordable Millcreek Compact Spreader to your 10 hp garden tractor, take it right to the stall for easy loading. No more wheelbarrow.

Millcreek Spreaders last and last
Since spreaders are our specialty, we put more into each one. For example our 20-year guaranteed floor will never rust or rot. Positive chain drive provides excellent spreading action. And tough steel construction holds up to rugged farm use. Seven sizes, for 1-horse barns to 50-horse stables. PTO and ground drive models available.

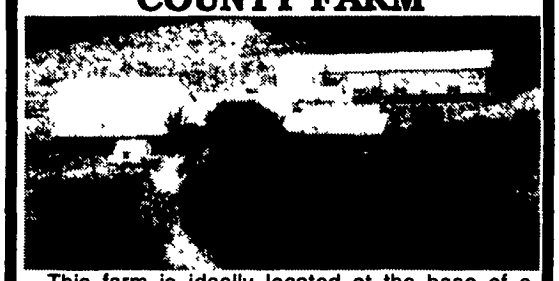
153 ACRE DAUPHIN COUNTY FARM



This farm is ideally located at the base of a mountain range in Northern Dauphin County, (Lykens Valley), near Millersburg. The buildings are set several hundred yards off the main road, creating that perfect Currier & Ives setting everyone dreams about with the mountain as a back drop. The buildings feature a very well maintained brick center hall farm house with 4 large bedrooms and a large country kitchen. The out buildings consist of a 38x40 Bank Barn, 25x42 heated shop and 60x120 Morton pole building used for equipment storage. The majority of 100 tillable acres is gently rolling productive farm land with approximately 12 acres of pasture and 41 acres of woodland. This farm would be ideal for vegetable production with it's fertile crop land and abundant water supply for irrigation or it would make a perfect country estate, with it's beautiful setting and buildings.

Award-Winning Alfalfa Grower Understands Vital Role Of Good Workers

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NAZARETH (Northampton Co.) — Bob Oswald admits there is no secret to growing prize-winning alfalfa.

Simply put, Oswald surrounds himself with good employees, trusts the work of his crop assistant, takes care of his fertile soil, and carefully times the cutting and drying of his crop.

"There's no secret to doing this," he told Lancaster Farming during a visit to his farm on a bright, crisp autumn day last year.

A couple of months before, Oswald picked up the grand champion ribbon for the alfalfa later cutting division, field-dried only category, from the annual hay show conducted at Ag Progress Days in Rockspring.

Oswald narrows his management down to a few time-tested strategies that can almost guarantee success: making the most of good, well-drained soils, soil testing regularly, and cutting the alfalfa on time and getting it stored when ready.

"I do it right or I don't do it," he said. "I love what I'm doing and that makes me care."

Oswald manages 700 acres of corn, 400 acres of soybeans, 120 acres of alfalfa hay, and 75 acres of wheat on about 1,295 acres for his dairy enter
